LAST MARINES OF NICARAGUA ARRIVE IN U.S.

Quantico, Va., Greets 350 Veterans Returning on Henderson.

RECEPTION HEADED BY FULLER AND RUSSELL

Navy Yard and Barracks Here to Receive Many of Contingent.

The last of the Marines to return from Nicaragua stepped off a gangplank to the dock at Quantico Marine Barracks yesterday into the arms of waiting wives, children and buddies.

As the grim naval transport Henderson made fast at the quay, two-score Marine planes zoomed overhead, signaling the corps' elation at the return of their comrades.

For most of the sun-tanned 33 officers and 317 enlisted men, it was the first time their toes had dug in native soil for several years, and as they marched toward the barracks to stow their gear, tears softened stern visages.

Gen. Fuller Leads Party.

Back to the ship the doughty company filed after stowing away their equipment. Then they formed into a battalion, rifles on shoulders, and the post band blared the stirring "From the Halls of Montezuma" as they marched to the barracks again.

Two thousand Marines, wives, sweethearts, children and friends swarmed around the dock as the Henderson hove to and the frantic joy of approaching reunion was ecstric in the air as greetings were exchanged.

Maj. Gen. Ben H. Fuller, commandant of the Marine Corps, and Brig. Gen. John H. Russell, commandant at Quantico, led the official reception party, greeting the final contingent of Marines that [illegible] the Latin-American republic.

Many to Come Here.

Brig. Gen. Randolph C. Berkeley was in command of the detachment aboard the Henderson. Among other officers in the contingent were Brig. Gen. George H. Richards, paymaster, who takes up a similar station at headquarters here. Lieut. Col. Calvin Matthews, who helped train and commanded the Nicaraguan Guardia Nacional, also was aboard.

As usual the Marines brought back tropical pets. This time there were not so many because of strict regulations. A strikingly colored parrot, "La Paloma," the Nicaraguans call the bird, was the proud property of one sea soldier and drew murmurs of admiring comment. Many of the Marines brought back parakeets.

The enlisted men will be sent to various posts in the East. Ten will go to the Navy Yard here, and 14 will be assigned to the Marine Barracks, while 125 will join the garrison at Quantico. Another 100 from the aviation force also will be stationed at Quantico.

COMMISSAR RYKOFF STRIKES AT HIS FOES

Renews Fealty Pledge to Stalin and Predicts New Victories.

Moscow, Jan. 15 (A.P.).—Striking back at his accusers, Alexis I. Rykoff, commissar of communications who was placed "under strictest discipline" and warned that he was not sufficiently active in the fight against anti-Soviet elements, has denied that he is disloyal to the cause and reiterated his allegiance to Joseph Stalin's leadership.

Rykoff, who was dismissed from the political bureau of the Soviet party in December, 1930, only to be elected a member of the important central executive committee in March, 1931, pledged his faith in party policies in a speech, made public today, before the joint session of the Communist party's central and central control committees.

[illegible] which once cost him the premiership and for which he publicly repented in 1929, thereafter winning his way back into the good graces of the party, Rykoff disavowed his supposed connection with the followers of A. P. Smirnoff, who was expelled from membership in the central committee and deposed as vice commissar of agriculture of the Russian Socialist Federated Republic for offenses against the party.

Rykoff pleaded that work forced him to forego making public speeches lately, but declared his silence was no reason that his comrades should think he did not agree with party policies.

Declaring that a furious class struggle is still raging within the party as a result of efforts of enemies to split the ranks, Rykoff added that "I feel a great shame when my name is linked with that of Smirnoff."

He added, "Every step in the successful fulfillment of the five-year plan showed the central committee's policies to be correct. In me the party will always find a member ready to fight against all groups and hesitants.

"Under the banner of Stalin's leadership the party will march forward to new victories."

BARTER PLAN TO HELP IDLE URGED ON U.S.

Leading Economists and Relief Workers Favor Exchange Systems.

PRESIDENT IS ASKED TO NAME COMMITTEE

Use of Part of R.F.C. Loans to States to Establish Units Is Suggested.

Princeton, N. J., Jan. 15 (A.P.).—Leading economists and relief workers called upon State and Federal Government, in a memorandum issued tonight, to investigate and encourage barter or emergency exchange systems for the interchange of goods and services among the jobless as a means of alleviating existing unemployment.

As a step toward the national application of emergency exchange systems "already in successful operation in various parts of the country," the memorandum recommended that the President name a special committee to examine the feasibility of barter exchanges and to act as a clearing house of information on the best practice in their establishment and operation.

With this recommendation went the further request that the President ask the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to consider "the desirability of permitting States to use a reasonably restricted part of the loans granted for unemployment relief to make advances to properly established emergency exchanges."

Called Employment Aid.

Prefixing its recommendations, the memorandum stated: "It has been urged by many that large numbers of those now unemployed can be set at work producing goods and services for their own consumption through the establishment of emergency exchanges for such goods and services."

Such exchanges, the introduction continued, would in the opinion of many provide work "almost immediately" for large numbers of jobless without "appreciably" lessening the security of those already employed. The success of the barter system, it added, would greatly facilitate the restoration of general business activity.

The cost of setting barter exchanges in operation would be comparatively small, the statement said further, and once started they would be largely self sustaining, thereby lifting a great burden from private and governmental agencies "now struggling with the problem of providing relief."

Conference Is Urged.

Finally, the memorandum said, many believe that the barter projects

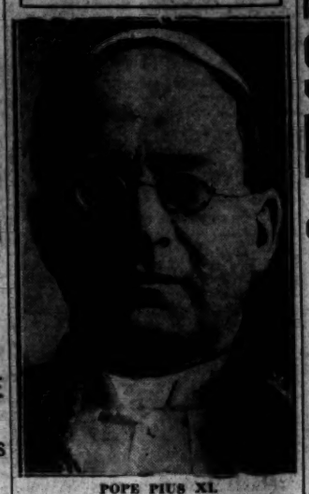
SETS JUBILEE



POPE PIUS XI.

ROME JUBILEE YEAR PROCLAIMED BY PIUS

Huge Crowds Hear Reading; Special Indulgences for Faithful Announced.

Vatican City, Jan. 15 (U.P.).—Pope Pius XI in ceremonies made impressive by the tolling of bells and all the solemn pageantry of the Catholic Church today proclaimed a "general extraordinary jubilee" year in honor of the ninteenth centenary of the death of Christ.

The proclamation, in the form of a papal bull, was read by Mgr. Giuseppe Wilpert, dean of the apostolic protonotaries, at 11:10 a. m. from the portico of St. Peter's Cathedral as all the church bells in Rome pealed throughout the city with impressive clamor.

"Let men lift up their thoughts awhile from earthly things," the Pope's bull read, "from the sad conditions of our times to the hope for that happiness to which the Savior called us. Let us collect our thoughts from the uproar of daily life during the holy year."

The Pope urged pilgrims to come to Rome and also to visit Palestine during the year. He proclaimed a "general extraordinary jubilee in this Holy City from April 2, 1933, to April 2, 1934." He said:

"We now fulfill the promise made on Christmas eve, proclaiming an extraordinary holy year in connection with the nineteenth centenary of the redemption of humanity.

"Let us turn in prayer and penitence for the sins we have committed, for mankind is torn by so many discords and afflicted by troubles."

The bull was delivered by the Pope to Mgr. Vincenzo Bianchi-Cagliesi, assistant chancellor of the papal state, who in turn handed it to Mgr. Wilpert in brief ceremonies in the Pope's apartment. They then headed a procession to St. Peter's, where the bull was formally ready.

Huge crowds gathered to hear the reading there and subsequent readings at other cathedrals. Pilgrims from all over the world were present, but only those especially invited witnessed the ceremony at the portico of St. Peter's.

The dead were identified by the line as Albert C. Kondat, 38, a pilot, and George D. Weidel, 22, a mechanic who was acting as copilot on the trial run.

Kondat had been in the Eastern Transport service for two years. He was married. His home was in Elizabeth, N. J. Weidel, who also lived in Elizabeth, had been employed as a mechanic three years. The plane was used on runs from the airport here to Atlantic City, Washington and Miami, Fla.

MAN WHO AIDED STARTIN PRISON FIRE KILLS SELF

Ohio Penitentiary Convict, Virginia Native, Split Wood for Blaze.

SECOND OF CULPRITS TO COMMIT SUICIDE

Only One of Plotters in Holocaust Fatal to 322 Still Alive.

Columbus, Ohio, Jan. 15 (A.P.).—Clinton Grate, 33, one of three convicts who confessed they started the Ohio Penitentiary fire in which 322 fellow prisoners died April 21, 1930, hanged himself today in his cell. He was the second of the three to end his own life. The third convict is still living.

Grate, who split kindling used to set off the fatal blaze, was found dead by a guard making his morning rounds of the correction cell block. In May, 1931, when Grate was arraigned in connection with the fire, he pleaded that he be allowed to die in the electric chair.

The conscience-stricken man had fashioned a noose from a sheet so quietly that none of his fellow prisoners in the "bad boy" block knew of his death. He hanged himself from a bar across the ceiling.

Only One Culprit Alive.

With Grate's death, only one of the three convicts implicated in the holocaust remains alive, serving a life sentence. Another, James Raymond, who gave their first clew in the case, killed himself in a manner similar to that in which Grate met death, August 21, 1930, four months to the day after the fire.

Hugh Gibbons, who lighted candles used to start the blaze in materials assembled for repair work on a penitentiary roof, still is alive. He is serving 10 to 20 years for robbing a Cleveland fur store, after which he will start a life sentence for his part in a plot to fire the penitentiary by which the three hoped to escape.

After long investigation of the prison fire, Grate and his confederates were permitted to plead guilty to second degree murder. They were sentenced to life terms without hope of pardon.

Text of Note.

When the investigation was begun, Grate feared Gibbons would "squeal." He slipped a note to a fellow convict, with instructions to give it to Gibbons. Instead the note was taken to Warden Preston E. Thomas.

It read:

"Keep your mouth shut—or else! But if you have decided to talk, I want to know it. When you get back to mess hall nod your head if you're going to talk. If you're going to keep still shake your head when I look at you. But whatever you do, let's stick together."

When Grate learned the note had been intercepted he asked to see the county prosecutor, Donald J. Hoskins.

"I split the kindling," Grate said briefly. "Gibbons lit the match."

Although Grate was a native of Virginia, he was sent up from Dayton to serve 20 to 25 years for robbery. He entered the penitentiary in 1922.

Texas Prisoner Killed By Jailer He Wounded

Stinnett, Tex., Jan. 15 (A.P.).—John "Shine" Popejoy, 55, held in the Hutchinson County Jail on a bank robbery charge, was shot to death and jailer Dan Cambern suffered severe bullet wounds when the prisoner attempted to escape today.

Popejoy, armed, broke from his cell when the jailer entered to remove dishes. He shot Cambern as he fled. Investigating officers said Cambern apparently killed the prisoner in flight. He did not get outside the jail.

First Photographs Arrive at the Post In Hunt for Queen

International Search for 51 Girls to Participate in Century of Progress Exposition Attracts Early Entries; Portraits for Rotogravure Section Give Added Interest.

The great international search for 51 "most charming" girls, launched yesterday by The Washington Post, has already produced results in a number of photographs that were left at the offices of The Post last night.

These young women, whose photographs thus entered them in the contest for $10,000 in cash prizes, also will be entitled to share in the distribution of an additional $500 that will be paid for photographs reproduced in The Sunday Post rotogravure section in a series of full pages, beginning Sunday, January 29.

It should be understood, however, that such publication of photographs has no effect on the final judging of photographs for the award of $10,000 which will be distributed in the following manner: $5,000 will be paid to the young woman whose photograph is selected as most expressive of feminine charm; $3,000 will be paid to the second in order of selection and $2,000 to the third.

The girl whose photograph is selected for the highest award will be officially designated Queen of the Century of Progress International Exposition at Chicago. The second and third grand prize winners will be, respectively, first and second ladies in waiting. Forty-eight other girls also will be selected, upon the basis of their photographs, to complete the queen's court of honor.

NAZIS WIN 9 SEATS IN LIPPE ELECTIONS

Retrieve Loss in November; Victory Is Seen Refuting Wane of Hitlerism.

Detmold, Germany, Jan. 15 (A.P.).—Adolf Hitler's National Socialists gained considerably in Diet elections today in the smallest German state, Lippe, in which there was nation-wide interest.

The Nazi chieftain personally led his cohorts in the battle for the 27 Diet seats, of which since 1929 the Social Democrats have had the largest number, nine, and the Nazis only one.

Today's results gave the National Socialists nine seats and the Social Democrats seven. The rest were scattered, Dr. Alfred Hugenberg's Nationalist People's Party being the chief losers.

Herr Hitler concentrated the whole Nazi electoral machinery in the capital of Lippe, Detmold, to retrieve the loss of 9,242 votes in the November 6 Reichstag elections, as compared with those of July 31.

The Nazis, however, succeeded in winning back only 5,606 votes, but nevertheless the result was regarded as being a refutation of enemies' assertions that Hitlerism is on the downgrade.

The results also, it was said, doubtless will stiffen the Nazi leader's back in party negotiations with the government.

In nearly all wards Hitler recaptured several hundred votes, compared with the November 6 elections.

The Communists obtained two seats, as against the one they previously held. Candidates of three parties, the Farmers', the State and the Catholic, failed to win a seat. Nine parties had candidates.

Minor scuffles incidental to the elections in Brake, Horn and Salzuflen resulted in injuries to about half a dozen persons.

Chicago Loop Buildings Lost in $250,000 Fire

Chicago, Jan. 15 (A.P.).—An early morning fire, believed to have been of incendiary origin, today destroyed three Loop buildings with damage estimated by firemen at $250,000. A fourth of the city's 200-plus fire engines were called into action by the five alarms that were sounded.

The fire broke out in an old building in Lake street between Wells and La Salle and spread to two others before it was brought into control. Two stove repair firms, a textile company and two tobacco companies occupied the buildings.

SILENCE HIDES FATE OF SOVIET STEAMER

Few Messages Reported Since First Word of Fire on Board.

Dutch Harbor, Alaska, Jan. 15 (A.P.).—Fate of the Soviet freighter and passenger steamer Sakhalin was veiled by silence over the far Pacific today, with no further messages describing the plight of the fire-stricken vessel, abandoned by half its crew.

With only a few radio messages revealing what had happened since the first S O S call was sent out Thursday, the last message, late last night reported that the amidship deckhouse and hold had been destroyed by fire.

The vessel was in the Sea of Okhotsk, off the Siberian Coast.

Picked up first by the steamer Golden Tide, the message was relayed by that vessel and intercepted by the Government station here. The Sakhalin's first S O S call was picked up on the Washington Coast, but subsequent messages have been weaker.

In addition to reporting that, because of the fire, "half the crew left," last night's message revealed the Sakhalin had been heard asking Soviet authorities at Vladivostok for assistance.

The Soviet authorities were requested to send airplanes to the stricken vessel to remove the passengers.

No further messages weer heard during the day by the Government station here.

Friday, Japanese stations which heard additional messages from the vessel, reporting it was on fire, gave out reports that 254 persons were on board. No subsequent confirmation has been received.

The vessel's positio nis about in the center of the Sea Okhotsk, northeast of the Island of Sakhalin and west of the Kamchatka Peninsula. The first distress message reported it to be at 53.05 north and 145.08 east.

Italian Army Flier Inverted 41 Minutes

Rome, Jan. 15 (A.P.).—An Italian army aviator flew his plane upside down today for 41 minutes 37 seconds and claimed the feat set a world record. He is Capt. Raffale Colacicchi. He used a single-motored Breda biplane of the type in use by the Italian army.

His time was checked by a commission named by the Royal Aero Club, who declared it was almost double that of the French acrobat, Michele Detroyat, set last December 12.

Three Die in Powder Blast

Mysterious Explosion Occurs as Kentucky Victims Are Seated in House; Infant Among Dead; Boy Not Expected to Survive.

Morehead, Ky., Jan. 15 (A.P.).—Two persons were killed instantly and another injured fatally last night when two kegs of powder exploded and destroyed the home of Sylvester Deboards, on Dry Creek, 8 miles from here. A fourth victim was in critical condition today in a Lexington Hospital.

The powder, used for blasting purposes in a small mine, exploded as the victims were seated in the house. Luther Hamilton, 23, and his daughter, Anna Lee, 18 months old, were killed instantly. The child had been sitting on her father's lap. Hamilton's arms and legs were torn off.

Miss Lizzie Deboards, 23, and her brother, Jesse, 16, were taken to a Lexington Hospital, where the girl died today. Hospital attendants said the boy's chances for recovery were slight. He was burned on the face and body. The father, Sylvester Deboards, who was in the house at the time of the blast, was severely shaken up but was not likewise injured.

Authorities said they did not know what caused the powder to explode.

FOUR IN CABINET ASK PHILIPPINE VETO BE UPHELD

Stimson, Hurley, Chapin and Hyde Make Plea as Vote Nears.

SENATE MAY BALLOT ON MEASURE TODAY

Hoover Aids Attack Plan as Economically Unsound; Warn of War.

(Associated Press.)

On the eve of a possible Senate vote upon his veto of the Philippine independence bill, President Hoover, through the medium of four Cabinet officers, yesterday unleashed a second concentrated attack upon the measure as economically unsound and likely to provoke war.

Presidential aids early yesterday summoned newspapermen to the White House to receive a bulky sheaf of arguments against the measure, written at Mr. Hoover's request by Secretaries Stimson, Hurley, Chapin and Hyde.

In a torrent of Senate debate Saturday Republicans and Democrats alike attacked the President's veto message. Senator Vandenberg (Republican), Michigan, was the lone Republican defender. Informal polls of the Senate have indicated that two or three votes may finally be the balance by which the veto will be sustained or overridden. The House voted down the veto by an ample margin.

Warning of Disorder.

Bidding for the margin of support needed to uphold his stand that the independence bill would not only economic ruin for the islands but also foreign invasion, the President repeated through letters from his aids the arguments of his veto message.

Secretary Stimson, himself a former Governor General of the Philippines, asserted in his letter that to grant the measure of freedom provided in the present bill would be "simply catastrophic."

"It needs no imagination to grasp the effect which it would have upon the moral prestige and material influence of the United States in the Far East," Stimson said. "To every foreign eye it would be a demonstration of selfish cowardice and futility on our part. The charge that we had tricked those whom we have undertaken to protect would be accepted. In the Orient, far more than in the Occident, prestige is the measuring rod of success.

Might Be Irreparable Blow.

"Such a situation might be an irreparable blow to American influence at a time when the state of affairs in the Far East is chaotic, when every element of stability is threatened, and when out of the Orient may again come one of those historic movements which might disturb the whole earth."

The Secretary of State maintained that the Philippine Islands today represent a necessary "islet of growing western development and Christian thought surrounded by an ocean of orientalism."

He said that to withdraw American sovereignty in the islands under the terms of the present measure would tend to disturb an "equilibrium" which has had a settling effect on the "political thought of the various races, or nations in the Far East."

Cites Filipinos' Desires.

"No one can live with the Filipinos," Stimson said, "and not realize that their desire for what they call independence is fundamentally a desire for a fuller measure of domestic self-government and not a desire to

Briton Is Arrested In Friend's Murder

Detectives Find Him in Room With Collection of Mystery Fiction.

South End, England, Jan. 15 (A.P.).—Samuel Furnace was arrested by Scotland Yard detectives today and charged with murder of his friend, Walter Spatchett, whose charred body was found after a fire last January 3.

The detectives, who had been seeking Furnace since, discovered him at a boarding house. The landlady said Furnace had been there about a week and had remained in his room most of the time complaining of illness.

A large number of detective stories were found in his room. The landlady said he remained in bed most of the time reading. On the mantle were two stumps of white heather, which in the Scotsman's language of flowers means good luck.

Great Congregation Hears Freeman Eulogize Coolidge

Government Officials and Diplomatic Corps Among Those Who Attend Cathedral Memorial Rites; Prayers Offered for Former President.

Vice President Curtis, members of the Cabinet, the Diplomatic Corps and Government officials headed the congregatoin which filled the great choir and sanctuary of Washington Cathedral to overflowing yesterday afternoon at the memorial service in tribute to Calvin Coolidge, thirtieth President of the United States. Close personal friends of the late President were also present and the Senate and House were represented by special delegations.

In his memorial address, the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, declared that Mr. Coolidge's fine Americanism, his complete devotion to customs and usages long tried and tested by experience, his utter honesty and freedom from sham and deceit, made his name a synonym for the best, held and treasured by the people.

Prayers were offered in commemoration of the former President and in behalf of Mrs. Coolidge and others of his family.

Bishop Freeman in his address stressed the heavy burden of the Presidency on the vitality and strength of the Chief Executives. He pointed out that the President is ever a friend and neighbor to the people of the Capital. "Though his tenure be brief, at most eight years, he moves among us as our First Citizen, the exponent of domestic as well as public policies. Shall we not venture to say that our judgments of our Presidents are more kindly and generous by reason of this intimacy?

ROOSEVELT-M'ADOO TALK SIGNIFICANT

Krum Elbow Conference Believed First Step Toward California Harmony.

Hyde Park, N. Y., Jan. 15 (U.P.).—President-elect Roosevelt and William Gibbs McAdoo, the man who stampeded the Chicago convention for him, went into conference tonight for what friends believed was the first step toward unification of the Democratic and Republican Progressive forces of California.

The two men met in the seclusion of Krum Elbow, Roosevelt's Hudson Valley home.

McAdoo, who came here at the express invitation of the President-elect, described the conference as one in which "the general political situation will be reviewed."

His remarks concerning patronage distribution, however, were interpreted as meaning the conversations would be concerned with welding stronger the political machines that swung California into the Roosevelt column by a sweeping majority.

"What is your opinion as to Roosevelt calling an extra session of Congress?" he was queried.

"I do not see how an extra session can be avoided. With a Republican White House and Senate the best that can be hoped for is the passage of appropriation bills."

The meeting of Roosevelt and McAdoo was the first since early in the Presidential campaign. It was believed the President-elect's program for economic rehabilitation, which will be presented to the next Congress, also was taken up.

For the second time in as many days President-elect Roosevelt declined to see newspapermen who sought comment from him on the Congressional developments that are threatening his Washington program.

Millions to Build Nearby Refineries

Independents to Put Up Baltimore Plant as Result of Tax.

(Associated Press.)

Millions of dollars will be spent in the next few months for construction of oil refineries at Baltimore and probably Houston, Wirt Franklin, president of the Independent Petroleum Association of America, said yesterday. The construction is the result of the effect of the oil excise tax in the present revenue bill, he said.

"American labor will receive employment in building these refineries," Franklin stated, "whose total cost is estimated at $13,500,000, and additional American labor will be employed in their operation.

"The exportation of American factories or production plants to foreign countries to the detriment of American workers * * * is now reversed."

THE CABINET PICTURE

—A Preview - - - No. 3—Department of Agriculture

HENRY A. WALLACE.

HENRY MORGENTHAU, Jr.

HARRY FLOOD BYRD.

CHALLENGING problems will face the men composing the new President's Cabinet. This article, third of a daily series, lists men suggested for Secretary of Agriculture and touches upon the matters that may come before Mr. Roosevelt's appointee.

By FRANK I. WELLER.
(Associated Press Farm Editor).

No cabinet post to be filled by the new President has more proposed candidates than the post of Secretary of Agriculture in Franklin D. Roosevelt's administration.

Already no fewer than 15 "odds-on" favorites have been named by the political forecasters as best qualified to fight for the agricultural recovery which many hold is essential to the return of general prosperity.

The scope of possibilities in selection is attested by the constantly recurring mention of such manifestly different characters as Henry A. Wallace of Iowa, farm paper editor; Henry Morgenthau, jr., New York State commissioner of conservation and Harry F. Byrd, former governor of Virginia.

It is accepted generally that the so-called farm revolt which carried one after another of the normally republican agricultural States into the Democratic fold in November will be a fundamental consideration in selecting a secretary. It has been stressed to the point of suggesting that Senator George Norris of Nebraska be offered the post in recognition of what is termed the West's new independence at the polls.

The political overturn in the agricultural States, encouraged by Mr. Roosevelt's promise of a "new deal" for the farmer, was stirring in Iowa long before the Presidential campaign.

It spread over the Midwest in the form of highway picketing against the movement of low-priced produce, arbitrary tax and farm debt moratoriums, and neighborhood combinations to so control sheriffs sales as to reinstate dispossessed farmers at a fraction of the amount of delinquency.

The revolt seemed to spring from the soil without hints of inspired radicalism. From its inception communistic tendencies evidenced in some of the marches on Washington were soundly condemned.

It frequently was described as an orderly, 100 per cent American demonstration to which no party it supported could fail to give substantial recognition in subsequent administration of affairs vital to the welfare of America's largest occupational class.

The slogan of the movement coined by the American Farm Bureau federation was "Ballots, not bullets!" and Wallace, son of a former secretary, Henry C. Wallace, Republican, used his publication from the instant of a pre-campaign conference with Mr. Roosevelt to urge regular party followers to scratch their ballots in the interest of candidates making the best offer to agriculture.

In contrast with President Hoover's declaration at Des Moines, Iowa, against "patent medicine nostrums" the farm movement proposed legislative manipulation to make the tariff effective on farm products, to reduce the commodity quanity value of the dollar and to bring tariff schedule in line with foreign purchasing power.

To what extent the new Secretary will be active in furthering that campaign will depend on his caliber for influencing members of Congress and his personal economic views.

In any event it is conceded he will have the unusual task of administering some such agricultural relief plan as that proposed in the voluntary domestic allotment bill which, among other extraordinary functions, suggests the probability of placing producers of surplus crops under contract as to acreage.

The task implies the economic rehabilitation of $0,000,000 of population whose income from the Nation's greatest business enterprise has dwindled from $16,000,000,000 annually to scarcely more than $5,000,000,000.

Tomorrow—The Departments of Commerce and Labor.

CAR FORCED TO GO INTO TREE; 4 HURT

Police Broadcast Sounded to Locate Autoist Who Drove From Scene.

Four persons suffered minor injuries yesterday when the car in which they were riding was forced off the road and into a tree at Garrett Park road near the Georgetown University Preparatory School in Maryland. Police are searching for the driver of the colliding vehicle, who is said to have left the scene of the accident without stopping.

Miss Harriet Lewis, 18, of Garrett Park, was the most seriously injured. She was treated by Dr. George Lewis, of Rockville, for a possible fracture of the right shoulder and transferred to the Montgomery County General Hospital.

The others injured were David Goldberg, 19, driver of the car, and Carl Darby, 19, an athlete at the Rockville High School, both of Rockville. They were treated for shock and bruises. Miss Virginia Sudduth, 18, of Rockville, was treated for contusions and lacerations of the right side.

Witnesses noted the tag numbers of the colliding vehicle and said it was headed toward Rockville. A police broadcast was sent out for the car.

Rancher Convicted In Triangle Murder

Quarrel Over Family Cat Leads to Baring of Love and Death.

Seattle, Jan. 15 (A.P.).—A jury today convicted John T. Bibeau, middle-aged rancher, of first degree murder for the slaying of Alfred T. Elliott last November 25, the outgrowth of a strange triangle in the Elliott home. He will receive a life sentence.

The slaying culminated a quarrel which began over putting out the cat at their ranch home for the night, and during which Bibeau, in anger, revealed a sixteen-year-old affair with Mrs. Elliott. Elliott had been Bibeau's ranch partner for many years.

Bibeau walked to Seattle and surrendered. During the murder trial his defense was a plea of insanity.

Rug Company Comptroller Dies.

Carlisle, Pa., Jan. 15 (A.P.).—Edward C. Leithead, comptroller of the C. H. Masland Co., rug manufacturers, died today in a hospital after ten days' illness of pneumonia. He was 39.

50th Year Is Reached By Civil Service Body

(Associated Press.)

The Civil Service Commission is 50 years old.

On January 16, 1883, President Arthur approved the Federal Civil Service law creating the commission, the first of the Government agencies independent of the major departments.

Fewer than 14,000 positions were classified under the civil service law when it was passed. At the close of the last fiscal year 467,161 positions were subject to competitive examination, representing 80 per cent of the entire personnel of the Federal executive civil service.

FOUR CABINET MEMBERS ASK PHILIPPINE VETO BE UPHELD

pass off the protection and advantages of their connection with the United States. After they find that they have bound themselves irrevocably to a loss of the economic advantages which they previously enjoyed, they will be quick to charge that they have been the victims of a shabby trick at the hands of the government which has assumed to be their guardian and their benefactor."

Stimson maintained that Philippine freedom as provided in the vetoed measure would abandon "the opportunity for a constructive solution of the Philippine problem," would terminate the present relationship in a manner which would provoke "resentment and unrest in the islands," and would "disturb the equilibrium of the Far East" in addition to damaging the material interest of the United States in the Orient.

Sees Protection Lacking.

Secretary Hyde asserted in his letter that the bill does not "constitute what has been claimed for it." The Secretary of Agriculture said that no protection would be afforded to American agriculture during the two or three years which would elapse before the creation of the proposed intermediate government in the islands.

Even after this period of delay, he said, there would be "no real protection afforded to the American farmers by the export taxes" which would be imposed on a graduated scale upon goods shipped to the United States from the Philippines. The maximum imposition of 25 per cent of the existing duties, which might be imposed during the period of the intermediate government, he said, would not suffice to protect adequately American competitive products.

"It seems clear to me," Hyde concluded, "that the American farmer is being misled as to the protection offered by this bill. It is now that he needs protection, not several years hence when the country has generally recovered."

Lists Island Products.

Secretary Chapin listed one after another the present products of the islands in relation to world trade, and asserted there would be a setback in every case should the present free trade agreement be annulled.

Philippine sugar, representing an investment of approximately $200,000,000 and 48 per cent of the total returns from island exports in 1931, Chapin said, "could not be sold in the American markets even if admitted under the reduced rates of Cuban sugar, and, considering the present overproduction, no other market is available."

Although the hemp and copra industries would not be materially affected by a change in the free trade status, he said, the coconut trade "would probably be lost entirely to the Philippines."

Danger of Cigar Output.

Chapin said that the desiccated coconut industry probably would "revert to Ceylon, where labor is cheaper and freight rates to the United States lower."

The United States, he added, now takes nearly 80 per cent of the Philippine cigar output, and loss of the American market "would probably endanger the life of that industry." The Secretary of Commerce stated his belief also that it would be impossible to balance the budget of the islands should the free trade relationship be changed.

He asserted that land values would be affected materially and pointed out that 64 per cent of the local loans of the Philippine National Bank are secured by real estate. The bank has 55 per cent of its total investments dependent upon the sugar industry for liquidation, he added, and disruption of this industry "would seriously affect at least two-thirds of the value of those loans."

The statement made by Secretary Hurley, by far the longest of those made public at the White House, was in the form of a formal report recommending a veto of the independence measure. Mr. Hurley inspected Philippine conditions personally in 1931, and since that time has insisted that the granting of independence should be delayed for a considerable number of years.

"The question by which we are confronted today is this," Hurley said. "Are the Philippines now prepared for independence? The facts answer that question in the negative. The operation of the bill would destroy the progress made toward self-government by the Filipino people.

"We are told that a large majority of Filipino leaders want immediate independence even at the cost of economic chaos and social disorder that this measure will entail. All of that may be true. But let us not lose sight of the fact that among existing reponsibilities of the United States is included a special obligation to consider the welfare of the Filipino people.

Forewarns of Crisis.

The Secretary of War maintained that the projected measure would substitute for what has proved a "successful government," a period of continued American sovereignty "under a loose, destructive, dangerous plan which does not discharge the United States from responsibility, but does, in large measure deprive it of its means to discharge that responsibility."

Hurley said that the transition from a free-trade status to one in which present customs duties would be charged, probably would "precipitate such financial chaos as to cause great internal disorder." Even the prospect of such a situation, he said, might provoke a crisis.

The Secretary asserted that the independent Philippine government under present conditions would be without financial ability to maintain an armed force sufficient to protect the islands.

Constitutionality Doubted.

In addition, the Secretary of War raised the point of the possible unconstitutionality of the independence bill. He submitted a statement from the judge advocate general of the Army to the effect that "the proposal to withdraw that sovereignty and destroy those rights by simple acts of Congress is in my opinion repugnant to the letter and spirit of the Constitution."

The same opinion maintained that a "further amendment to the Constitution" would be necessary to grant the acts projected by the independence measure.

"This bill," Hurley asserted, "put the Philippines in an economic strait-jacket. Under it, after voting for independence and the Constitution, the Filipino people have no alternative but to destroy themselves economically."

Grippe Fails to Hold Up Woman's African Flight

Oran, Algeria, Jan. 15 (A.P.).—An attack of grippe made flying extremely uncomfortable today for Lady Mary Bailey, British aviatrix, but she announced the illness will not prevent her from continuing her flight from England to Capt Town.

Seeking to better the record of Amy Johnson for the distance, she left Croydon Airport, England, at 1:40 a. m. today, and arrived here, ill, at 3:30 p. m. Undaunted, Lady Mary declared she would take off again at 9:30 p. m. southward in the direction of Colomb Bechar, just across the Atlas Mountains, which she had named as a refueling point.

CURRENCY INFLATION CLAMOR IS GROWING

Filibuster Against Glass Bill Conducted by Friends of Credit Expansion.

(Associated Press.)

An increasing clamor for currency inflation of some sort as a means of easing the Nation's financial situation has opened the doors to legislative consideration, but it is generally conceded that definite action at this session of Congress is highly improbable.

Hearings on various inflationary proposals, including the remonitization of silver, are to be undertaken by the House banking and currency committee at the direction of Chairman Steagall, probably the latter part of this week.

Demands for consideration of similar plans also are increasing in the Senate, where advocates are engaging in the filibuster against the Glass banking reform bill in the hope that they may force action. However, neither the finance nor the banking committee of that branch has shown any disposition as yet to begin hearings.

Would Simplify Bankruptcy.

Seeking to relieve the credit situation from another legislative angle, the House judiciary committee hopes to report this week the McKeown-LaGuardia bankruptcy revision bill, designed to permit creditors and debtors to come into Federal courts and settle their difficulties in simple fashion.

Far-reaching technicalities have arisen to impede the committee's progress, but once the measure is smoothed out, early consideration by the House has been promised by Speaker Garner. President Hoover only last Wednesday recommended to Congress that such legislation be enacted.

Senators Thomas, of Oklahoma, and Wheeler, of Montana, both Democrats, have aided Senator Long, of Louisiana, in his battle against the Glass banking proposal, in the hope that the Senate will capitulate and turn to either the remonitization of silver or some other form of currency inflation.

Busby Scents Success.

Meanwhile, a nonpartisan group of House members received encouragement from the announcement by Steagall, Alabama Democrat, that both sides of the question of issuing new currency would be heard by his committee.

Representative Busby (Democrat), Mississippi, author of the bill backed by the group, said his measure was strictly an emergency proposal, calling for an issue of $3,000,000,000 in currency, to pay current expenses of the Government.

In disagreeing with statements by Steagall and Representative Rainey, of Illinois, the Democratic floor leader, that currency expansion proposals have scant possibility of enactment at this session, Busby said sentiment "is growing for some sort of inflation."

Silver Remedy Slow One.

It would require from two to three years, Busby contended, for any measure remonitising silver to become effective.

Reenactment of the Glass-Steagall bill, advocated by the administration last year to broaden the base of paper eligible for rediscount purposes with the Federal Reserve, is to be sought by Chairman Steagall.

The Alabaman has introduced a bill to make the provisions, which expire March 3, continue for another year. They permit banks to rediscount Government bonds as collateral required by law for the issuance of Federal Reserve currency.

Eugene Meyer, governor of the Federal Reserve Board, urged the measure last year as a means of increasing Federal Reserve currency.

BARTER PLAN TO AID JOBLESS PROPOSED

could be initiated without disturbing the present relationship of the existing economic structure.

Beside the committee it recommended the President appoint, the memorandum suggested that the Chief Executive call a conference of executives in industrial commercial and merchandising enterprises "to consider, and, if deemed proper, to encourage the cooperation of such enterprises in developing such emergency exchanges."

The memorandum has been in preparation since the annual meeting of the American Statistical Association last November.

11 VOTE CONTESTS AWAIT NEXT HOUSE

Democrats Filed Nine and General Fraud Is Charge in Most Cases.

(Associated Press.)

Washed up by the November wave of ballots, the largest number of election contests in recent years—eleven—are awaiting the convening of the next House for settlement.

Although the Democrats gained almost 100 seats in the political somersault last year, nine of those disputing the face of the official returns are members of the party that will dominate both houses after March 4.

In almost every instance the contest charges can be summed up in one word—fraud, which includes claim of illegal registration, outright stealing of votes, forged poll tax receipts, vote buying and excessive expenditures.

The contests will be referred to the three house Elections Committees at the first session of the Seventy-third Congress. Then will follow inquiry and the report of the committees on the cases to the House.

That body may or may not follow committee recommendations and its decision will be final, for each House is the sole judge of disputes involving its membership.

The vote in most of eleven contests was close, only 78 ballots separating Representative Edward Goss, Republican in the Fifth Connecticut District, and his challenger, Martin Gormley, Democrat. Goss received 42,132, and Gormley 42,054.

However, in Mississippi, Representative Russell Ellzey got 25,725 ballots and the man who disputes the returns, Loyal G. Reese, Republican, only 386. Reese claims the election was illegal because the ballots did not carry his name, but that of another "alleged Republican."

Representative Harry S. Estep, Republican, has not filed a contest against Henry Ellenbogen, Democrat, in the Thirty-third Pennsylvania District, but there is a problem in that race since Ellenbogen will not be eligible to take the oath of office until this summer. The Constitution provides that a representative must have been a citizen seven years and Ellenbogen has not.

A potent influence in the House, Representative Fiorello H. LaGuardia (Republican), New York, who has led many an uprising against his party leaders, must upset the recorded vote if he remains in Congress.

The returns showed that 15,227 persons voted for LaGuardia in the Twentieth New York, while 16,447 chose James J. Lanzetta, Tammany Democrat.

One woman, Anne E. Felix, Democrat, disputes the figures which showed that Michael J. Muldowney, Republican, won by almost 6,000 votes in the thirty-second Pennsylvania District.

Other Contests Filed.

Records in the House Clerk's office show the other contests are:

Twentieth California — Claude Chandler, Democrat, with 43,304 votes, against George Burnham, Republican, with 43,737.

Ninth Illinois—James McAndrews, Democrat, with 36,596, against Representative Fred A. Britten, Republican, 40,253.

Tenth Illinois—Charles H. Weber, Democrat, 100,449 vs. James Simpson, jr., 101,871.

Fifth Iowa—Lloyd Ellis, Democrat, 51,732 vs. Lloyd Thurston, 51,909.

Second Pennsylvania — John J. Shanahan, Democrat, 27,571, vs. Representative James M. Beck, Republican, 42,233.

Twelfth Pennsylvania—John J. Casey, Democrat, 55,550, vs. Representative C. Murray Turpin, Republican, 57,377.

First Tennessee—Both Albert C. Tipton, Democrat, 7,950, and Representative O. B. Lovette, Republican, 2,788 are contesting the election of B. Carroll Reece, Republican, 30,366.

HOOVERS OBEY URGE AND GO FOR STROLL

Spring-Like Weather Lures President and Party on Building Tour.

President and Mrs. Hoover, following the inclination of many of their countrymen, left the car in the garage yesterday afternoon and enjoyed a leisurely stroll in the spring-like weather.

Both the Chief Executive and the First Lady took the opportunity to view the new Government buildings from the perspective of the average citizen, having seen them only from flag-draped platforms at corner-stone layings or hurriedly from their limousine.

Leaving the White House by the west gate, the President and his wife, accompanied by secret service men, first viewed their residence as so many other Americans see it—from the Ellipse. Then they traversed Sherman Square, adorned just a few weeks ago by a lighted Christmas tree in honor to the Yuletide season.

After viewing the Department of Commerce, the distinguished boulevardiers proceeded unobserved—save by a reporter—past The Washington Post Building, and thence to the triangle of new Government buildings. The President evinced particular interest in the rapid growth of the new Postoffice Building since he laid the corner stone for the structure last year.

Interest, too, engaged the couple at the new Interstate Commerce Commission Building, which was recently the scene of a spectacular night fire. The President also inspected the progress made at the Labor Department Building, where he laid the corner stone. Other new Government buildings, now in the course of construction, were visited before the return to the White House.

The Presidential party was away from the White House about half an hour and, so far as could be determined, the President and First Lady went their way unrecognized.

Japan Accuses China Of Shanhaikwan Guilt

London, Jan. 15 (U.P.).—On the eve of the League of Nations' final attempt tomorrow to settle the Chinese-Japanese controversy over Manchuria, the Japanese consulate-general here issued a statement accusing the Chinese of causing the Shanhaikwan "incident" to arouse sympathy.

The statement said the Chinese forced Japan to occupy Shanhaikwan, and that the Japanese were strengthening their garrison there, fearing further trouble.

Counselor Discusses Views on Manchuria

Paris, Jan. 15 (A.P.).—J. Theodore Marriner, counselor for the American Embassy, today discussed Washington's attitude regarding Manchuria with Pierre Cot, undersecretary for foreign affairs, who is going to Geneva for a meeting of the Committee of Nineteen of the League of Nations.

The embassy remained in close touch with French officials regarding the matter. The Committee of Nineteen tomorrow will reopen their discussions of the Manchurian situation in the light of the Lytton report.

TUNING SIMPLIFIES 2-WAY PLANE RADIO

Pilot Lifts Special "Mike" Ground Station Dials to Perfect Hook-Up.

Chicago, Jan. 15 (A.P.).—Two-way radiophone communication between flying airplanes and ground stations has been simplified by development of an automatic tuning device, overcoming an obstacle in aviation radio which threatened temporary disruption of schedules.

Planes flying the New York, Chicago-Pacific Coast Airway broadcast regular reports on different frequencies allocated for day and night use by the Federal Radio Commission, and at dusk all planes must change from day to night wave lengths to conform with regulations.

Frequency Formerly Unchanged.

Formerly the shift of complicated equipment to another frequency necessitated landing the plane for adjustment and proper tuning by a special radio operator. Thus aircraft in flight between division points often had to remain on day frequency when overtaken by dusk.

Now an automatic shifting mechanism, known as the "radio robot," changes the plane's radio equipment's wave length as the ship soars along. At dusk the pilot simply presses a switch and these shift to night frequency.

Another new development in plane-to-ground radiophoning announced by United Air Lines, which has installed the automatic tuning device, is an aviation radio switchboard by means of which operators simply dial numbers—as one dials telephone numbers—to communicate with a plane in flight.

Reports Every 20 Minutes.

On the coast-to-coast airway, pilots report to the nearest ground station every 20 minutes, advising their position and weather conditions.

As soon as the pilot lifts his special microphone and "calls in," his action is indicated on the ground station switchboard, and the operator there dials the proper number, perfecting the hook-up.

As the ground station operator receives messages from a number of planes using different wave lengths, the dial system has been installed to increase speed and efficiency of the relay stations.

Text of Pope's Papal Bull Proclaiming Jubilee Year

Vatican City, Jan. 15 (A.P.).—The text of Pope Pius' papal bull, "Quod Nuper," proclaiming an "extraordinary" holy year of prayer, penance and pilgrimage to Rome to bring peace to the world follows:

Promulgation of an extraordinary holy year and of a general and highest jubilee for the nineteenth centenary of the redemption of mankind.

Pius, bishop, servant of the servants of the Lord, to all the faithful who shall read these letters, salutations and apostolic benediction.

We hasten to fulfill the promise made recently the day before Christmas not only to the venerable college of their eminences the cardinals and to those, our sons, who had come to extend to us the holiday greetings, but also to the whole Catholic world, that is, decreeing an extraordinary holy year and a general and highest jubilee at the close of the nineteenth century from the accomplishment of the redemption of mankind.

In fact, although the precise year of this event has not been historically ascertained, nevertheless the fact in itself, or rather the series of these admirable works, is of such gravity and importance that it would be improper to let them pass in silence.

Moved, therefore, by this most happy centenary, men should turn their thoughts, at least in part, from earthly and decaying things in which today they are struggling so unhappily, to celestial and eternal things. Let them lift up their minds from the fearful and sad conditions of these days to the hope of that happiness to which our Lord Jesus Christ called us when he poured out his blood and conferred immense benefits of every kind. Let them withdraw themselves from the din of daily life and reflect in their hearts with themselves, especially during this centenary year. Inasmuch as our Savior loved us and with such ardent zeal liberated us from the slavery of sin, so undoubtedly they will feel themselves seized with greater charity and will be almost necessarily impelled to love again this most loving Lord.

Should Examine Series Of These Divine Benefits.

For the usefulness of everyone we should like here to examine at least briefly the series of these divine benefits from which springs also that true civilization which we enjoy and in which we glory: That is, the first institution in the supper of the Lord of the Holy Eucharist and the distribution of it to the Apostles who were initiated into the order of priests with the words: "Do this in commemoration of me;" the passion of Jesus Christ, his crucifixion and death for the salvation of men; Mary the Virgin at the foot of the Cross of her Son made the mother of all men; then the admirable resurrection of Jesus Christ, condition and certain security of our resurrection; then the power granted by Him to the Apostles of remitting sins, the true primacy of jurisdiction confided and confirmed to Peter and his successors; and finally the ascension of the Lord, the descent of the Holy Ghost the Paraclete, and the first preaching of the Gospel done in a prodigious and triumphant manner by the Apostles.

Beloved sons, what other centenary should be holier or worthier of celebration? From these wonderful events and divine gifts with which the earthly life of Jesus Christ closes emanates to us that life which is the true life, and arises a new order of centuries for all the human generation.

We revivify such recollections therefore during this holy year with every intensity and we venerate them with fervid love. Let us stimulate ourselves to prayer, to penitence for the sins committed by us, having in mind in our prayers and acts of expiation not only our eternal salvation, but also that of all mankind led astray by so many errors, torn by so many discords and hostility, laboring under so many miseries and fearful of so many dangers.

Oh! May the most merciful Lord bring it about that the holy year which we shall shortly inaugurate will bring peace to souls, to the church that Liberty everywhere due her, to all peoples concord and true prosperity.

Purification in Sacrament Of Penance Opportune.

And since this jubilee celebration will begin with the approach of the Easter solemnities and close in the Eastertide, we believe it opportune that the bishops exhort all their own faithful to purify themselves in the sacrament of penance and nourish themselves with the Eucharist bread, not only during the Easter time set for observing the precept of the church, but as often and with as great devotion as they can, especially throughout the holy year; and also to meditate, in special manner on Friday of Holy Week on the passion of the Lord. Let this be the particular fruit, and truly of no small importance, of this celebration.

It being then understood that the plenary indulgence which we are about to grant can be obtained during this jubilee year only in Rome; we ardently desire, O beloved sons, that you come in very large numbers in pious pilgrimage to this city: To this city we say which is as the center of the Catholic faith, the domicile and see of the vicar of Jesus Christ. Here in fact it is possible to venerate the renowned relics of the passion of the Lord, which no one of the faithful can see without feeling his love warming toward God and without being aroused to a more perfect life. Here as you know is preserved that table on which tradition says our Lord Jesus Christ consecrated the bread of the angels after having himself given it, hidden under the Eucharistic veils, to his beloved disciples. Finally, beloved sons, you have here the common father who lovingly awaits you and desires to implore the divine blessing upon your possessions and undertakings.

It will also be appropriate that more frequent devout pilgrimages be made to the holy places of Palestine during the course of this year and that the faithful visit there and recall with the greatest devotion the theater of the most holy events which are the object of this commemoration.

Particular Piety For Famous Relics.

We desire also that in those places where famous relics of the passion of our Lord are kept they be venerated this holy year with particular piety.

Happy, indeed, in the hope of these abundant fruits which even now we foretaste in our mind and with humble prayers recommend to the Father of Mercies, with the assent of our venerable brothers, the cardinals of the Holy Roman Church, with the authority of omnipotent God, of the blessed Apostles Peter and Paul, with our own authority, for the glory of God Himself, for the salvation of souls and the increase of the Catholic Church, we decree and promulgate with these apostolic letters, and we desire that it be established and promulgated, a general extraordinary jubilee in this sacred city from April 2 of this year to April 2 of the year 1934, this according to canon 923.

To all the faithful of both sexes who during this holy year, having confessed and communicated, either on the same day or in different days and in whatsoever order visit piously three times the Basilicas of St. John Lateran, St. Peter in Vatican, St. Paul on Via Ostinse, and St. Mary's Major on the Esquiline Hill, and pray according to our intention, we concede and impart mercifully in the Lord a plenary indulgence for all the punishment they must suffer for their sins of which these faithful shall have first obtained the remission and pardon. And we hereby notify the faithful that as soon as they have left the Basilica after their holy visit they can immediately enter anew the same Bascilica to fulfill the second and third visit. This we establish to render the fulfillment of this condition more convenient.

What is generally the desire of the Roman pontiffs, beloved sons, you certainly know, and what in this case is particularly our intention we have already exposed above with sufficient amplitude.

Decree That Indulgence Can Apply to Others.

We further decree that this jubilee indulgence can apply both to one's self and for benefit of the defunct faithful each time that the prescribed works are faithfully executed.

In order that the prayers that are said on these sacred visits may recall to the minds of the faithful and inspire in them the memory of the divine redemption and especially the passion of the Lord, we decree and order as follows: In addition to these prayers made spontaneously to the Lord according to each one's piety there should be recited at the altar of the most Holy Sacrament five paters aves glorias and also a pater ave gloria according to our intention; there before the image of Christ crucified all should recite the profession of faith three times as well as the credo and once the ejaculation adoramus te, Christe, et benedicimus tibi, et cetera, or something similar; then they should go before the blessed Virgin and seven times, remembering her sufferings, recite there the angelic salutation ave Maria adding once the ejaculation "holy mother do this, et cetera," or something similar; finally they should go to the altar of confession and again devoutly make the profession of Catholic faith with the usual formula given above. We intend to lighten the dispositions we have above established as necessary to enjoy all the indulgences of the jubilee for those who during the voyage or because of illness here in Rome or because of death or for any other legitimate reason can not complete the number of the prescribed visits or have not even been able to begin them, in such manner they if they confess and communicate they may participate in the same indulgence and jubilee remission as if they had in fact visited the four basilicas we have above nominated.

Prayer and Meditation According to Custom.

Nothing now remains, beloved sons, except to exhort you in the Lord, whether you are inhabitants of Rome or pilgrims, to profit by this opportune occasion to visit with the greatest devotion the widely celebrated Chapel of the Holy Relics in the Sessoriana Basilica of the Holy Cross and make the pious exercise of the Holy Stairs, praying and meditating according to the custom.

In order that the knowledge of these our letters may more easily reach all the faithful, we desire that the printed copies of them, subscribed by a notary public and bearing the seal of a person of ecclesiastical dignity, receive the same faith that one would give the present letters on being shown them.

No one is permitted to impair or contradict temeriously this document of our decree, promulgation, concession and will. If any one presumes to attempt this, let him know that he will incur the displeasure of omnipotent God and of the blessed Apostles Peter and Paul.

Given at Rome, at St. Peter's, January 6, the Epiphany of our Lord, in the year 1933, eleventh of our pontificate.

(The bull was countersigned by Cardinals Pacelli, secretary of state; Fruhwirth, chancellor of the Holy Roman Church, and Gasparri, chamberlain of the Holy Roman Church.)

New York, Jan. 15 (A.P.).—Formation of a commission to investigate the economic situation, particularly in regard to the technique of production and exchange, was announced today by Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University.

The commission will consist of 17 members, 7 from Columbia University, 4 from other Universities, and 6 from among students of economics and public affairs.

No mention was made of technocracy, that group of investigators quartered at Columbia University, which for months has been investigating and charting the effects of technological unemployment.

THREE STATES HEED BANKRUPT FARMERS

Iowa, Nebraska and Wisconsin Move to Save Producers Facing Sale Threat.

Des Moines, Iowa, Jan. 15 (A.P.).—The man behind the plow in the corn belt is making a militant plea to stay there and State officials are listening.

This was the situation today as authorities of three States—Iowa, Nebraska and Wisconsin—took definite courses of action in response to the protest of farmers against high taxes and auctioning of delinquent farm property, which reached the crescendo stage over the week-end.

The agriculturists are basing their protest on the ground they can not meet current obligations during the present low prices on crops, and to press their case are employing the "force system," that had its inception in Iowa last summer when they picketed roads that led to market in an effort to bring about better returns on produce.

Impelled by three large farmers' mass meetings in southwest Iowa—two of which halted sheriff's sales and the other voting resolutions seeking reduction of tax levies and governmental expenses—L. A. Andrews, State superintendent of banking, ordered a moratorium on farm real estate or chattel mortgage sales by closed banks. Andrews said the order would stand until real etsate and chattel prices were higher.

Many Wisconsin circuit judges were ready to carry out Gov. A. G. Schmedeman's request that they refrain from enforcing the law on foreclosures.

Several members of the Nebraska State Legislature announced they would expedite through lawmaking channels bills designed to reduce taxes sharply, as threats of a "farmers march" on Lincoln came to the State capital.

SOUTHWEST DEMAND FOR TAX CUTS HEARD

Legislatures Heed Voice of Citizens Hit by Low Commodity Prices.

Kansas City, Jan. 15 (A.P.).—A loud demand for tax reduction, voiced by a citizenry directly concerned by unprofitable grain, live stock and oil prices, has spurred State Legislatures into action in the Southwest.

A distinct trend toward retrenchment in public expenditures already is manifest in recently convened lawmaking bodies in Oklahoma, Texas, Kansas and Missouri.

Kansas has shown the way toward a balanced budget. Last year general property levies by State and local units dropped to $71,730,356, as compared to a high of $95,661,710 in 1929. An actual cash balance of $6,585,495 was reported by the State treasury at the close of the 1932 calendar year.

Deficit in Oklahoma.

Neighboring States, however, were not so fortunate.

Frank Carter, Oklahoma State auditor, predicts a deficit of around $12,000,000 by the end of the fiscal year, June 30.

The current Texas general revenue deficit is given as $3,500,000. Missouri, where the recently retired Gov. Henry S. Caulfield insisted that expenditures be sharply reduced, ended the biennium January 1 with an official balance of about $300,000 in the general revenue fund.

Sentiment in support of existing or proposed income taxes, generally designed to ease the burden from real estate and balance budgets, has cropped up in many quarters.

Chain-Store Tax Asked.

Alfred M. Landon, recently inaugurated governor of Kansas, has recommended enactment of a graduated income tax in that State. He proposes also a levy on chain stores.

In Missouri, where an income tax already is in force, there has been no official movement either to decrease or increase it.

Both an income and consumers tax have been recommended to the Texas Legislature.

Gov. W. H. Murray has taken the lead in a legislative effort to balance the budget in Oklahoma. His recommendations, including a revision of an existing income tax and drastic cuts in appropriations, are included in bills now being rushed through the Legislature under the turbulent governor's whip.

The world outside is at times stern and unjust in its criticism and censure. The burdens, all too heavy, that the Chief Executive carries, are rendered more exacting by reason of this."

Declaring the American people often becomes less generous in appraisal of those whom they elevate to high office the bishop told how often the chosen leaders break under the strain imposed upon them. "The vigor of robust manhood yields to the cares of office and furrows the brow and heart with seams that deplete and render uncertain the vital things of health," continued the bishop. "It is only when death stills the heart that we become sensitive to the inconsistency of our judgment and regard with high praise the sacrifices of our public servants."

Funeral Music Played.

The service was opened with the organ voluntary "Largo" from the New World Symphony by Dvorak, which had been played at President Coolidge's funeral in Northampton January 18. The lesson was read by the Rev. Dr. Allen A. Stockdale, pastor of the First Congregational Church of Washington, where President and Mrs. Coolidge worshiped while in Washington. The Rev. Dr. ZeBarney Phillips, chaplain of the United States Senate and the Rev. Dr. James Shera Montgomery, chaplain of the House of Representatives were in the procession of choir and clergy.

The hymn before the Bishop's address was "O Love That Wilt Not Let Me Go," a favorite of the former President and one which was sung at the funeral service in Northampton.

The ushering of the huge congregation was handled effectively by the Cathedral Guild of Ushers under George C. DeWilde and Surgeon General Robert U. Patterson, U. S. A., assisted by J. Pierrepont Moffatt, chief of the Division of Western European Affairs; James Clement Dunn, chief of the Division of International Conferences and Jefferson Patterson, of the Division of Protocol, all of the Department of State.

Praises His Patience.

Summing up the lessons of President Coolidge's life, Bishop Freeman praised his reserve, his patience, the genius for deliberative action, and said he came to his high office at a time when these excelling gifts were most sorely needed in the national leadership. "Calvin Coolidge seemed like one upon whom care rested with lighter touch than upon other men," he exclaimed. "Where other men were tense, he seemed relaxed and serene. Where others betrayed the strain of nerve and muscle, he was calm and sustained no lack of poise. His quiet, his self-containment, his simple ways, were assets that constituted his capacity to endure. His very manner of life, his habits of reflective silence, his evident regard for economy in the spoken word, his plain and wholesome ways of living, these gave him a place of unique distinction in a world made monotonous by the practices of mediocrity."

"To many," Mr. Freeman reminded his congregation, "Coolidge was a man of mystery. His freedom from the dramatic and spectacular, his avoidance of that which is showy and bizarre, led unthinking people to regard him as lacking the elements of popular favor. Notwithstanding this erroneous impression, he appealed to the imagination in a manner seldom approximated by those who have filled his seat of power."

Deep Religious Faith.

That President Coolidge was a man of deep religious faith which governed his thinking and judgments was claimed by Bishop Freeman. He quoted from a letter written to him by President Coolidge in September, 1923, shortly after he had become President, in which Mr. Coolidge had written: "Whatever inspires and strengthens the religious belief and religious activity of the people, whatever ministers to their spiritual life, is of supreme importance. Without it, all other efforts will fail. With it there lies the only hope of success. The strength of our country is the strength of its religious convictions," the letter concluded.

"Among our Presidents," ended the bishop, "Calvin Coolidge occupies a place altogether his own. His subtle wit, his aphoristic utterances, his habits of silence, his simple New England ways, his capacity to absorb and make use of the judgments and opinions of others, his fixity of conviction and his definiteness of decision—these were his distinguishing marks and characteristics.

"Calvin Coolidge has not lived and died in vain. No words of ours can add to or subtract from his distinction. In life he sought not praise and repelled all forms of adulation. His place is secure in the pantheon in which we enshrine the names and deeds of the good and the great."

Notables in Attendance.

Mills, and Mrs. Mills; the Secretary of Agriculture, Arthur M. Hyde, and Mrs. Hyde; the Secretary of Commerce, Roy D. Chapin, and Mrs. Chapin, and the Secretary of Labor, William N. FIRST PORTRAITS ARRIVE IN SEARCH OF FAIR QUEEN

leges and honors, is offered to every girl, unmarried or widow, regardless of where she may live and without a penny of cost. Professional beauties such as actresses and artist's models, together with employes of The Washington Post, and their families, are alone excluded from competition.

It is not necessary to be a subscriber to The Washington Post nor to buy a single copy of this newspaper in order to compete. Merely send in your own photograph or that of a charming friend, accompanied by the transmittal coupon printed elsewhere in this paper today or with the same information written on any sheet of paper. Photographs must have been taken within the last twelve months and be at least 6 by 8 inches in size.

Although this search for the 51 most charming girls in the world is international in its scope, there seems every reason to believe that the queen and a large proportion of her court will come from Washington. Judgment will be upon the basis of charm, loveliness and personality as expressed in photographic reproductions of feminine faces. Therefore winners need not be conspicuous for their beauty.

It can not be too strongly emphasized that this search for 51 charming girls is not a "beauty contest." It is a worthwhile, dignified search for the type of girlhood that will best express the character that has evolved in a "Century of Progress." An expression that indicates a sweetness of disposition will thus have far more weight with the judges than an exquisite nose, a well-molded chin or beautiful eyes.

This is a real opportunity for every girl—not merely for the few who may be endowed with unusual physical perfection. The queen may prove to be a young school girl upon whose face has been traced no line of worry or care; she may be a stenographer, a clerk or a woman of more mature years whose face reflects the joys and sorrows that have been her lot in life.

Whatever their respective ages and status may be, The Washington Post and its affiliated newspapers in this great contest will select the 51 most charming girls and confer upon them honor and rewards that will truly parallel the story of Cinderella.

The northwestern disturbance has advanced to eastern Hudson Strait and two other centers have developed over the plateau region, Colorado and the Central Plains States. Another disturbance is moving eastward over western Alaska. Pressure remains high from Newfoundland southwestward to the Gulf of Mexico, while an area of high pressure of great magnitude is spreading from eastern Alaska and Yukon southeastward and southward over western and central Canada.

Precipitation mostly light, has occurred in the Pacific States, the plateau and northern Rocky Mountain regions and North Dakota. The temperature has risen in the Eastern half of the United States and it has fallen decidedly from the Western Canadian provinces southward over the Dakotas, Montana and Wyoming and portions of the plateau region. The temperature was zero at 8 p. m. as far south as North Dakota and Central Montana. Fair weather will prevail almost generally Monday, but the Colorado disturbance will move northeastward and it will likely be attended by rain Tuesday except in portions of the South Atlantic States. The rain will change to light snow in the Ohio Valley, the lower Lake region, northern New England and northern New York. The temperature will rise almost generally Monday and it will continue to rise Tuesday in portions of the South Atlantic States, while colder weather will overspread Tennessee, the Ohio Valley, the lower Lake region and the North Atlantic States Tuesday and Tuesday night and the Middle Atlantic States Tuesday afternoon or night. Much colder weather is probably as far east as the Appalachian region by or during Tuesday.

Spanish Emigres Endure Hardships

One-Time Grandees, Prince and Other Exiles End Prison Flight.

Lisbon, Portugal, Jan. 15 (A.P.).—A story of escape from a Spanish penal settlement and an 1,800-mile sea journey in a 50-ton boat in which great hardships were suffered was unfolded here today when a party of 29 Spanish monarchist exiles, who escaped January 1 from Villa Cisneros, West Africa, arrived here.

They escaped from the penal settlement of Villa Cisneros on New Year's Eve and landed last night at the small village of Sesimbra, from which place they proceeded to Lisbon.

It was difficult to believe the ragged group was composed of once brilliant officers and grandees of Spain, including Prince Alfonso de Bourbon, a cousin of former King Alfonso.

FUNERAL RITE TODAY FOR MRS. V. B. JANIN

Prominent Social and Charity Worker Will Be Buried in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. today at St. John's Episcopal Church for Mrs. Violet Blair Janin, 84, active in social and charitable activities, who died Saturday at her home, 12 Lafayette Square. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Mrs. Janin was the daughter of James L. Blair, formerly of the United States Navy, who, after resigning from the Navy, entered partnership with the Aspenwalls and put the first steamers on the Sacramento River in 1849. He died at the early age of 35. She was a niece of Montgomery Blair, of Lincoln's Cabinet, and of Gen. Francis Preston Blair, jr., of Missouri.

Her father and grandmother were Francis Preston Blair, sr., and Eliza Violet Gist, who came to Washington during Jackson's administration—Mr. Blair to edit the Democartic organ, the Globe, issued by that administration and that of Van Buren's. Mrs. Janin's mother was Mary Jesup, a daughter of Gen. Thomas L. Jesup, United States Army, who distinguished himself at the Battle of Lundy's Lane in the War of 1812, and who for 34 years was quartermaster general of the United States Army. In memory of her mother, Mrs. Janin contributed the Library Building at the Washington Cathedral.

As treasurer of the National Society of Children of the American Revolution, she recorded the names of and corresponded with thousands of children members of that association. She was a charter member of the Mary Washington Chapter, D. A. R., of the District. She and her cousin, Mrs. Minna Blair Ritchie, founded the Society of Colonial Dames of America in the District of Columbia, and Mrs. Janin was president of that society from 1914 to 1932. She was a member of the ladies' board of Emergency Hospital and the St. John's Orphanage.

Her husband was Albert Covington Janin, who practiced law for many years in Washington. All Mrs. Janin's grandparents were members of St. John's Church. As an infant she was christened there and later married there.

Among Mrs. Janin's relatives in Washington are Woodbury Blair, Blair Lee, Gist Blair, Montgomery Blair, E. Brooke Lee, Dr. Montgomery Blair, Mrs. Beckinridge Long, Mrs. Adolphus Staton and David Edward Finley. Miss Mary Sitgreaves, a cousin, resides in Boston.

Banker for Return To Gold Standard

Scandinavia and England Urged to Come Back in Basel Speech.

Basel, Switzerland, Jan. 15 (A.P.).—L. G. A. Trip, a director of the Bank for International Settlements and governor of the Bank of Holland, today urged the early return of England and the Scandinavian countries to the gold standard. He spoke at a meeting of the governors of the Bank for International Settlements. Gates W. McGarrah, American director and chairman of the institution, presided at the meeting.

Mr. McGarrah outlined the financial situation confronting the United States, but it was reported he made no mention of rumors that he would retire from his present position in May.

It was unofficially stated that the Bank for International Settlements, upon the request of the Federal Reserve, which holds a fourth interest, will ask the Reichsbank for the return of a large part of the $86,000,000 loan due March 4.

Colombia Reported Ready for Attack

Upper Amazon City May Be Attacked From Air and Water.

Manaos, Brazil, Jan. 15 (A.P.).—Activities here today gave rise to rumors that Colombian forces will attack the disputed upper Amazon City of Leticia stimultaneously from air and water.

The Colombians, who have a flotilla here awaiting orders to proceed up the Amazon, attempted to contract for a Brazilian ship to carry foodstuffs for them.

It was rumored that Colombia plans to extend an advance as far as Iquitos, a small city in northeast Peru and headquarters of the Peruvian Fluvial navy. (Iquitos is on the upper Amazon, 332 miles above Tabatinga, seat of the Brazilian custom house and across from Peru). Meanwhile, the Brazilian ship Alegria was en route to Tabatinga. She will be added to the Brazilian flotilla sent up the Amazon to guard Brazilian interests in the Peru-Colombia boundary dispute.

In his letter Gimbel estimated that the Gimbel company should show a consolidated net loss of about $4,000,000 for the fiscal year just closing.

The Federal Diary

By GEORGE D. RILEY

TODAY is the fiftieth anniversary of approval by President Arthur of the act creating the United States Civil Service Commission, first Federal Government agency to function independently of the major departments.

RILEY.

"We are so accustomed," said a statement yesterday from the commission, "to the application of the merit principle in the classified civil service that we have little, if any, conception of the waste and corruption in Government which existed for many years prior to the enactment of the civil service law and the bitter struggle in the interest of reform waged by the advocates of good government against the forces of selfish interest and partisanship in its worst sense."

George William Curtis an outstanding champion of civil service reform, thus accurately described conditions prior to 1883:

"Every four years the whole machinery of the Government is pulled to pieces. The country presents a most ridiculous, revolting, and disheartening spectacle. The business of the Nation and the legislation of Congress are subordinated to the distribution of plunder among eager partisans. President, secretaries, senators, representatives, are dogged, hunted, besieged, besought, denounced, and they become mere office brokers. * * * The country seethes with intrigue and corruption. * * * Economy, patriotism, honesty, honor, seem to have become words of no meaning."

Lincoln, pointing out to a friend the eager multitude of office-seekers which thronged the White House, said: "There you see something which in course of time will become a greater danger to the Republic than the rebellion itself."

THE first man to grapple with the question of administrative reform in a thoroughly practical manner and to give continued single-minded devotion was Thomas Allen Jenckes, Rhode Island. A lawyer of marked ability, a man of wealth, belonging to a family of much local consideration, he assumed a position of importance from his entrance into the House in 1863. December 20, 1865, he introduced a bill. It shared the fate of other efforts; its novelty was too great to allow speedy acceptance.

The matter continued to receive attention of Mr. Jenckes and other far-seeing statesmen until success was assured.

Assassination of President Garfield in 1881 by a disappointed office-seeker focused attention of the country upon the iniquitous spoils system.

The bill embodying the civil service law was introduced by Senator George H. Pendleton, prominent Ohio Democrat. A majority of both parties voted for it in both houses. President Arthur approved. The bill was largely the work of Dorman B. Eaton, who became a member of the first commission.

Fewer than 14,000 positions were classified under the civil service law when the act was passed. At the end of the last fiscal year 467,161 positions were subject to competitive examination. This number represents 80 per cent of the entire personnel of the Federal executive civil service.

The employes' compensation act provides for compensation for disability incurred in line of duty. The retirement act allows retirement with annuity after a specified term of service and upon reaching the prescribed retirement age, or in case of total disability. The classification act has for its purpose a definite classification of duties and appropriate salary assignments. The object of the Council of Personnel Administration is to promote career possibilities in the Federal service by coordinating the needs of the several departments and independent agencies with the potential abilities of persons employed in the service.

In the 50 years there have been but 32 commissioners. Considering that three serve at one time, this number is small and is evidence of the stability of the oldest independent commission of the Federal Government.

Now, administrations change with little disturbance of the machinery of Government.

A RESOLUTION commemorating the fiftieth anniversary of the passage of the law establishing the Civil Service Commission, adopted by the District Department of the American Federation of Government Employes, was forwarded yesterday to Thomas E. Campbell, commission president, with the following letter signed by Michael D. Schaefer, president, and Willis E. Hurd, secretary of the District Department of the A. F. G. E.:

"This copy of these resolutions is respectfully forwarded, Mr. President, with the sincere good wishes of our membership to you and your fellow members of the commission, and with the hope that no untoward legislation may ever deprive that body of those inherent rights which contribute so thoroughly to the Government's best interests and to our protection as Government employes."

The resolution declares that "the unquestioned success of the civil service system of merit is most genuinely appreciated by all civil employes, displacing as it does the evil and antiquated spoils system, with its inefficiency and wastes." It also places the department on record as expressing "its profound gratitude because of the establishment of this vitally necessary Government organization, and likewise its appreciation for the efforts of those who have labored and are laboring for its protection and betterment."

Introducers of the resolution are C. M. Mears, Paul Vogenitz and Harry G. Ritner.

Miss Marjorie Harris, of the Miscellaneous Payments and Receipts Subdivision, has just returned from Louisville, Ky., visiting friends during the holiday. If affairs progress with the "Kernel" from Fort Myer she met en route, according to reports, congratulations will be in order.

The following excerpts from a letter addressed to Senator Frederick Hale, chairman, Committee on Appropriations, by H. Eliot Kaplan, secretary, National Civil Service Reform League, New York, asks for elimination from the pending Postoffice-Treasury appropriations bill (H. R. 13520), of the section taking away from the Civil Service Commission centralized control of personnel records and vesting such control in the several departments. The commission and the A. F. of L. also have asked that the section be stricken in favor of the present system.

"The centralization of personnel records in the Civil Service Commission is imperative in any effective administration of the merit system in the Federal service. Either the general accounting office must be burdened with additional work to check the employments of the hundreds of thousands of employes in the Federal service, or else we must accept the strong possibility—as has been experienced in the past—that hundreds of employes may be illegally employed without adequate knowledge on the part of the Federal agencies concerned with such employments.

"Because the lack of central control of personnel records tends to omit important and pertinent data for use by the Government as a whole, and because of the increased cost of such plan of decentralization, we urge your committee not to include the suggested amendment in the pending Postoffice-Treasury appropriation bill.

If you want to be on the winning side of a bet, just wager Capt. Thomas Breslin, Commerce guard force, will be on the job with regularity.

During his fifteen years, Capt. Breslin has lost only twelve days and that on account of a knee injury. The captain has that ruddiness that portrays the picture of health.

Beneath their austere blue and brass-buttoned uniforms, those gentlemen of the guard at Commerce conceal their Chesterfieldian graciousness displayed when requests for information are addressed them. Do not be dismayed by the military appearance of those guards. They're like that.

Mrs. Susan H. Walker, editor, Agriculture, says we write in "an extremely light vein."

HE had lost his junk some chapters back——

How did Gus ever find the house. It was not a pretentious place, no lawn, no flowers. The house, with its big brass knocker and its short stoop came right to the pavement, perhaps to meet Fedd. And a stooped janitor, the same kind with cap and apron, lots of apron, gazed at Gus and then at Fedd.

It was the place! Perhaps mademoiselle was behind those shutters peering into the street. We'll see.

The knocker knocked. Fedd often had heard that every knock's a boost.

Fish are cannibals, many of them. Saturday a fresh-water cod was devouring another fish about half its size in the Aquarium.

Miss Julie D. Connor, Home Loan Bank, exclaimed, "Isn't that fish eating the other?" The larger Mr. Cod was doing his best.

Fred Orsinger, director, explained, "Well, you see, they had a head-on collision and the big fish had his mouth open at the time and in went the little one."

THE Wrecking Crew, Dynamite Bowling League, is just that. Capt. Bill Crymes led the Wreckers with a 325 set, but he received substantial support from Anchorman Jack Weisbach and that old schoolmaster, Sherman Shelton. The Wreckers stepped in front with a five and one-half game margin by defeating the Duds, while the Sand Blowers, runners-up, lost its set to the Tornadoes.

The Dri-Kleeners, rolling with a dummy, beat the Hill Billies in two games after tasting defeat in the first affair, losing it by four sticks. Only two men spilled enough maples to reach the honor list, Pete Chipouras and G. H. Butler, of the Kleeners.

Hiandrys, Prohibition, pulled the Little Potatoes out of third by taking two games.

D. Theobald Smith, recently retired director of the Rockefeller Institute at Princeton University, visited Washington last week. The fact recalls to Agriculture officials that several decades ago he was first chief of the pathological division, Bureau of Animal Industry. While associated with the Federal bureau, Dr. Smith showed that the cattle tick, a parasite, is a disease carrier from one animal to another, which certainly represented the first scientific knowledge of its kind.

The detection became the foundation for the later discovery that the mosquito transmits such diseases as malaria and yellow fever. Dr. Smith is one of three eminent scientists for whom the Smith-Reed-Russell Society of the George Washington University School of Medicine is named. It is composed of students having a general average of 86 or better in all of their work in the school of medicine. Thirty-nine students have won the honor of wearing the key of the society.

DESIRING to reward a faithful and conscientious employe, the board of representatives, Local No. 2, Friday adopted a motion presented by the chairman of its finance committee, Harlow Bacon, which gave a one-step raise to the union's cashier, Miss Mary L. Thornton, who has just completed 14 years of service. The raise was dated back to January 1, 1932, to carry into effect a retirement annuity plan also adopted by the board. The plan contemplates contributions by both Miss Thornton and the union. The administration of the fund thus created is being placed in the hands of the three trustees of Local No. 2, Robert E. Lowe, Joseph Stansfield and Dr. George M. Beckett.

The board heard reports of the national executive council meeting here last week. John D. Cloud, national organizer, stated the membership report submitted by Miss Gertrude M. McNally, national secretary-treasurer, showed 82 new and reinstated locals formed and a net gain of 10,000 members for 1932.

Dr. Walter P. Taylor, fifth national vice president from Tucson, A iz., outlined the work of the council, stating its present session had more and harder problems to solve than any since he had been elected national officer. He pointed out the hard time being experienced by poorer paid Veterans' Administration Hospital employes in the Southwest.

He called attention to the fact that the Senate Economy Committee is now proposing to add to the burdens of all Veterans' Administration Hospital employes by adding to their hours' by withdrawing the Saturday half holiday, or its compensating time, now enjoyed by these employes. Dr. Taylor also condemned the effort to curtail and destroy the effectiveness of the Civil Service Commission by transfer of its personnel records to the department and offices all over the country.

Dr. Taylor and U. J. Biller, seventh national vice president, urged greater activity by Federal employes as they are going through one of the hardest fights to maintain present conditions that they have ever faced. Both Mr. Biller and Dr. Taylor, expressed pleasure at the growing realization on the part of the employes that a hard and organized fight is necessary.

The board thanked Dr. George M. Beckett, trustee and finance committeeman, for his long service. Dr. Beckett has just retired from the Veterans' Administration, pension service, after 46 years of service during which time he lost only four days on sick leave.

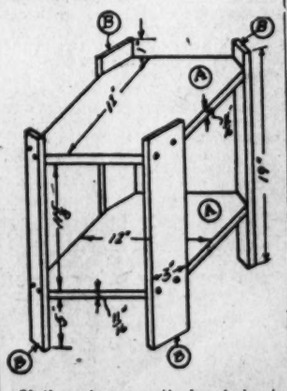
Diary Hobby List

What's Your Hobby?

This is the third of a series of articles prepared by National Committee on Wood Utilization to bring about the utilization of second-hand wooden containers, such as boxes, crates and barrels, now thrown away or burned.

IT is probable that the majority of articles in this series will be prepared from old wooden containers which are made of softwoods. After the article has been completed and is ready for decoration it should be finished with attractive colors. Since most of these articles will be for interior use, it is not necessary that linseed-oil paints be applied. The latter type of paint is used on dwellings and is usually the most durable on wooden surfaces. Such paints are rather slow-drying in character as compared to varnish paints and lacquers. The latter two materials are now widely used for interior decoration purposes, and would be entirely satisfactory for objects made from shipping container lumber.

Linseed-oil paints for exterior use may require twelve to fourteen hours to become sufficiently dry so that a second coat may be applied. For interior work, lacquer usually dries so that the surface may be recoated in a period of about 30 minutes, although a slightly longer time is usually preferred. Color varnishes of the four-hour type and clear varnishes of the same type dry in approximately four hours, but it is desirable to allow them six hours before recoating. The time will depend upon the season of the year and the ventilation in the place where the work is done. Varnish stains are combinations of a varnish with a staining material, which stain and varnish the wood in one operation. Beautiful effects may be obtained with mahogany varnish stains. Two coats are usually sufficient over a primed surface.



If there is no particular desire to have the object finished exceptionally well, varnish or lacquer products in clear or pigmented form may be applied in two or three coats without any priming of the surfaces.

If any exceptionally smooth and highly finished surface is desired, the cracks in the object should be filled with putty or crack filler, which may be purchased from any paint store. The whole surface could then be given a priming coat of silica wood filler, which may be purchased in liquid form at a paint store. After the primer has been allowed a sufficient period of time to become thoroughly hard and dry, varnish stain, color lacquer or color varnish may be applied in one or two coats to obtain the desired finish. If the woodwork has any large number of knots present it is often desirable to touch up the knots with a coat of shellac. After drying, finishing coats of colored product may be applied. After the first coat of color varnish or lacquer has been applied and allowed to thoroughly dry, it may be lightly rubbed with fine sandpaper to remove any imperfections before applying the final coat. A much smoother surface is thus obtained. Aluminum paint is sometimes used for touching up knots if the finishing coats are to be of paint for exterior surfaces. Highly satisfactory results are obtained with this treatment.

Lacquering or painting work should be done in a place where there is good ventilation and no flames. Brushes used for lacquer should not be used for paint, varnish or enamels. Lacquer brushes should be softened in lacquer solvent and kept well cleaned. Paint brushes should be washed in turpentine, thoroughly dried and kept clean for the next operation.

Since many different colors may be desired, it would probably be desirable to purchase the products in pint or quart cans. If the colors obtainable at a paint store are not exactly those desired, two colors may be mixed together to produce different shades or tints.

DOUBLE TAX CRIME VERDICT IS GUILTY

House Committee Finds 326 Instances of Duplication by U. S. and States.

(Associated Press.)

Both the Federal and State Governments have been found guilty of the "crime of double taxation" by the House Ways and Means Committee on double taxation.

An abstract of a preliminary report of the committee's investigation made public yesterday by Representative Vinson of Kentucky, chairman, said:

"The conclusion is inescapable that taxes, State and national, should be rationalized and stabilized, or in the language of President-elect Roosevelt, on this subject, in which he has manifested much interest, 'synchronized.'"

Overlapping Frequent.

The committee, composed of Vinson, Cullen of New York, and Lewis of Maryland, Democrats, and Chindblom of Illinois, and Crowther of New York, Republicans, began its study last year in an effort to determine how the States and the Federal Government might go about the overlapping and duplicating of levies.

"The preliminary report shows that both the Federal and State Governments are guilty of the invasion of a tax field originally entered by the other," the report said. "For illustration, the Federal Government, at one time, solely occupied the income tax field. Likewise, the tobacco field. At the present time, 23 States and territories have income tax statutes, the majority of which are of recent origin, and 13 States have entered into the tobacco field."

Gasoline Hard Hit.

On the other hand, the report said, the Federal Government recently had entered the gasoline tax field, already held by the States.

Between the Federal Government, States and territories, it said, "there are approximately 326 duplications of levies, and added that "the heavy tax burden upon various commodities means diminution of sales, with the consequent lesser yield in revenue," particularly on gasoline and tobacco.

Other fields of double taxation, the committee reported, included income levies on individuals and corporations, death and inheritance taxes, cigarettes and electricity, counties and cities now are levying on gasoline sales.

Catholic Children Hold Procession

300 in New York Pageant, Believed Unique in This Country.

New York, Jan. 15 (A.P.).—A procession of 300 children clothed in religious habits gathered from all parts of the world, featured today the observance of Mission Sunday in the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of New York.

The pageant, held in St. Patrick's Cathedral, is believed to be unique in the United States. Representing the communities of Catholic missionaries abroad, the habits were collected after a year's work.

The altar boys, numbering more than 100, were clothed in costumes similar to those worn by pages in the middle ages.

Michigan Refuses Return of Fugitive

Detroit, Jan. 15 (U.P.).—James Crawford, 20, Negro fugitive from a Georgia chain gang, left police headquarters a free man Saturday after Gov. William A. Comstock refused Georgia's petition for his extradition.

The Negro, arrested at the request of Georgia authorities, had been held in custody pending disposition of habeas corpus proceedings brought by attorneys retained by the International Labor Defense.

Gov. Comstock refused to turn Crawford, alias Fisher, over to officers from the Southern State on grounds that the extradition papers were not sufficient.

Alleged Bond Thief Held in New York

Friend of Diamond and Chapman Fails to Raise $15,000 Bail.

New York, Jan. 15 (A.P.).—John Burt, 47, who police said was formerly associated with the late Jack (Legs) Diamond and the late Gerald Chapman, was placed in the Tombs today when he was unable to raise $15,000 bail after he was charged with grand larceny.

Burt, who the authorities asserted was one of the cleverest bond thieves in America and was reported as worth more than $1,000,000 a few years ago, was charged with taking eleven $1,000 Missouri Pacific Railroad Co. bonds from a messenger in a downtown elevator last June.

The bonds were alleged to have been stolen from a messenger employed by Benjamin Ferguson, a broker, of 61 Broadway. Carson Reiner, who was arrested last month in connection with the theft, is at liberty in $4,500 bail pending arraignment Wednesday with Burt.

Japanese Pacifist Predicts His Death

Ozaki Foresees Assassination by Those Who Think Him Unpatriotic.

London, Jan. 15 (A.P.).—When Yukio Ozaki, veteran Japanese political leader and champion of disarmament, left recently for Japan, he was convinced, the London Herald said today, that he was soon to be assassinated by fellow countrymen who considered him unpatriotic.

He knew his "death warrant was signed," the newspaper explained, because certain Japanese objected to his recent utterances in the United States and London. (In speeches in the United States a year ago Mr. Ozaki said Japan was making a mistake by opposing participation of America in efforts to conciliate the conflict between Japan and China.)

Before sailing, Ozaki, who is 73 years old, wrote his son in Tokyo that "for a public man, the best form of death is to fall at the cold hand of an assassin."

FOREIGN NEWS IN BRIEF

London, Jan. 15 (A.P.).—The government, for reasons of economy, has displaced some of the policemen on duty at the houses of Parliament, using a new corps of custodians instead. The saving is estimated at £13,000 a year.

Dunferline, Scotland, Jan. 15 (A.P.).—Peter Coutts, a butler, and Henry Gow, a beekeeper, went to court over a swarm of bees which Coutts said Gow appropriated, but the beekeeper won when the court ruled that he was entitled to them under a law, handed down from the Romans, specifying that swarming bees belong to the first person who takes possession of them.

London, Jan. 15 (A.P.).—A review by Scotland Yard of its activities in 1932 notes fewer serious crimes than in any year since the war. Of 21 murders investigated during the year, only 2 remained unsolved.

Sydney, Australia, Jan. 15 (A.P.).—Despite sharks nearby, a nudist cult which has been shunted from practically every beech on the east coast of Australia seeks to lease Brown Island from the government. You should know the Truth about the cigarettes you smoke

A great deal of confusion has been caused by certain representations made in cigarette advertising. A clamor of competitive claims has bewildered the public. We have received hundreds of letters asking us the truth about the conflicting claims of various brands. Because Camel first popularized cigarette smoking, because Camel has sold more billions of cigarettes than any other brand, we were the natural people to write to. And we are the natural people to tell the facts about cigarettes. We have always offered an honest cigarette, honestly advertised.

1. Question: What is the mildest cigarette?

Answer: The fact that a cigarette is insipid and tasteless does not mean that it is mild. The fact that it has been artificially flavored or scented does not mean it is mild. Mildness means that a cigarette is so made that it is gentle and non-irritating without sacrifice of flavor. This is almost entirely a question of the quality of the tobaccos and the skill in their blending. Practically all of today's popular cigarettes are manufactured and rolled in much the same way. The difference comes in the tobaccos that are used. While the irritating effects of cheap, raw tobaccos can be removed to some extent by intensive treatment, nothing can take the place of the more expensive, naturally fine tobaccos. The mildest cigarette is the cigarette that is made of the best tobaccos. It's the tobacco that counts.

2. Question: What cigarette has the best flavor?

Answer: There are just three factors that control the flavor of a cigarette. The addition of artificial flavoring. The blending of various tobaccos. And the quality of the tobaccos themselves. Quality is by far the most important. Cheap, raw tobacco can be disguised in part by artificial flavoring. But it can never equal the goodness of mild, ripe, costly tobaccos. Adding a number of poor things together will not make a good thing. And when you consider that domestic cigarette tobaccos vary in price from 5¢ a pound up to 40¢ a pound, and imported tobaccos from 50¢ to $1.15, the difference in cigarette flavors is readily apparent. Tobacco men long ago learned to choose, for flavor, the cigarette blended from the costlier tobaccos. It's the tobacco that counts.

3. Question: What cigarette is easiest on the throat?

Answer: The easiest cigarette on your throat is the cigarette that is made from the choicest ripe tobaccos. Cheap grades of tobacco are, as you would naturally expect, harsh in their effects upon the throat. And there is a peppery dust occurring to some extent in all tobaccos. Finding its way into many cigarettes, this dust has a decidedly irritating effect. A special vacuum cleaning process has been developed that removes all trace of dust. The absolute rejection of inferior tobaccos and elimination of this dust represent the highest standards ever attained in cigarette manufacture. The cigarette that is blended from the most expensive tobaccos under these modern conditions is as non-irritating as any smoke can possibly be. It's the tobacco that counts.

4. Question: What about heat treating?

Answer: This is one of the real superstitions of the tobacco business. All cigarette manufacturers use the heat-treating process. But harsh, raw, inferior tobaccos require considerably more intensive treatment than choice ripe tobaccos. High temperatures conceal, to some extent, the harsh effects of low-cost tobacco, although this parching process may produce a rather flat and lifeless flavor. But neither the heat treatment nor any other treatment can take the place of good tobacco. Heat can never make cheap, inferior tobaccos good. It's the tobacco that counts.

5. Question: What cigarette is coolest?

Answer: Many myths have been woven around "coolness." The facts are simple: Coolness is determined by the speed of burning. Fresh cigarettes, containing as they do 12% moisture, burn more slowly than parched, dry cigarettes. That is why they smoke cooler. This makes the method of wrapping very important. Improperly wrapped cigarettes begin to dry out as soon as packed. They smoke hot and dry. The Humidor Pack, although more expensive, gives protection ordinary cellophane cannot equal. It is made of 3-ply, MOISTURE-PROOF cellophane, tailored snugly to the package, and WELDED into a seamless envelope. Air cannot get in. Freshness cannot get out. The cigarettes are always in prime condition. An illusion of coolness can be achieved by adding certain chemicals to tobacco. But even chemicals cannot do more than mask the heat of quick-burning, dry tobaccos. The coolest cigarette is the freshest cigarette—the least irritating, the one that has the costliest tobacco. A cigarette blended from expensive tobaccos tastes cooler than one that is harsh and acrid. It's the tobacco that counts.

6. Question: What is the purest cigarette?

Answer: All popular cigarettes are made under sanitary conditions unsurpassed even in the packing of foods. All cigarettes are made with practically identical modern machinery. Uniformly fine cigarette paper is used. If any single manufacturer should claim superior purity it could only be interpreted as a confession of weakness unless he pinned his claim exclusively on the tobacco he used. Purity in a cigarette lies in the tobacco used. Choice grades of tobacco, from which even the fine dust of the tobacco itself has been removed, are less irritating, therefore "purer" than inferior tobaccos. It's the tobacco that counts.

7. Question: What about blending?

Answer: Even if other manufacturers should in the future use the finer, more expensive tobaccos which go into Camels, they would still be unable to duplicate Camel's matchless blending. Tobaccos are blended to give a cigarette its own distinctive individuality. The characteristic delicacy and flavor of the Camel blend have won not only the esteem of the American public, but the sincere admiration of other cigarette manufacturers, who have spent hundreds of thousands of dollars and years of effort trying to discover how the costly tobaccos in Camels are blended. But in vain. Camel's matchless blend is a priceless asset. Yet its fine full flavor is made possible because Camels use more expensive tobacco. It's the tobacco that counts.

It is a Fact, well known by leaf tobacco experts, that Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand. We actually pay MILLIONS MORE every year to insure your enjoyment.

FATE OF THE PHILIPPINES.

The Senate is about to make a momentous decision affecting the United States and the Philippines. The Philippine independence bill, which the President has vetoed, has in it the seeds of folly and disaster. If the islands should be granted independence, that independence should be based upon a solid economic foundation which would enable the country to sustain itself. Lacking that, there would be no real independence, and the islands would become the prey of powers that covet them.

At that point the United States would intervene, as a matter of conscience and honor, to protect the Philippines. The result probably would be war; but even if war should be averted, it would be at great cost, and this country would be compelled to begin all over again the guardianship which is intended to evolve the Philippines into an independent nation.

The duty of the United States toward the Philippines is to develop an independent nation. The duty of the United States toward itself is to avoid a war resulting from an unwise and premature attempt to set up a nation that can not stand alone.

It is astounding to hear in the Senate the argument that since the United States could not now defend the Philippines against attack by a great power, the islands would not be in greater danger if they were set adrift. The world knows that the Philippines are safe from aggression while the United States holds sovereignty over them. They are safe, not because the American naval forces are sufficient to prevent invasion, but because such an attempt would be war against the United States, to be fought everywhere in the world until the assailant of the Stars and Stripes had been destroyed. But with the United States relinquishing sovereignty, the islands would be swallowed up unless the United States should deem it a matter of honor to defend them. An aggressor would be tempted to take chances, relying upon confusion of counsels in this country and the influence of the elements that always stand for perfidy and dishonor.

The United States has before it the choice of two evils—first, retention of an archipelago in Asia which it does not wish to hold; and second, release of the islands under conditions which would make for failure, thus forcing this country to resume its tutelage after grievous experiences, or fight off an enemy bent upon extinguishing the independence prematurely granted by this country.

The lesser of the evils is to continue the burden of preparing the Philippines for independence. That course certainly avoids war; it avoids the probability of civil war in the islands resulting from inexperience and the clashing of races; it insures improvement in conditions as the Filipinos improve in experience; it points toward ultimate safe and stable independence, with American withdrawal once and for all, in honor and good will.

If the Senate should sustain the President's veto the Congress should adopt a policy looking to the economic independence of the Philippines as a foundation for political independence. The islanders should be induced to organize their system in such manner as to become independent of the American market. That is a difficult process, but it must be accomplished if the Philippines are to attain and retain their political independence.

The pending bill, which destroys the economic system of the Philippines while granting early political independence, is a travesty upon statesmanship, selfishly disregardful of the welfare of the Philippine people and blind to possible disastrous consequences to the United States. It is hardly conceivable that the Senate, charged in part with the duty of safeguarding the foreign relations of the United States, will approve of this legislation.

SLASHING THE ARMY.

Two pictures are essential to a clear perspective of the mutilated War Department supply bill as it emerged from the House committee on appropriations. The world is in turmoil. A war of major importance is being fought in the Far East. Before peace is again established the entire world may be drawn into that conflict. The so-called machinery of peace has sustained a severe blow. All the great nations are maintaining their armies and navies at a high point of efficiency. Expenditures for military activities have increased enormously in recent years. But the United States, the wealthiest nation on earth, ranks seventeenth among the great powers in the strength of its military forces.

The other picture represents many thousand unemployed young men roaming over the country looking for work and acquiring the habits of tramps and criminals. These wandering lads give social agencies one of their most serious problems. During the summer months their numbers are increased by boys who are out of school and have nothing to occupy their minds during the vacation period.

In complete disregard of these two conditions, the House committee on appropriations excluded from the War Department bill the fund for operation of Citizens' Military Training Camps in 1934. Since 1921, when the C. M. T. C. was established, 377,000 young men have been trained in the rudiments of good citizenship and national defense. This year 37,500 youths will receive such training. The Budget Bureau's estimates for 1934 contained only about 40 per cent of the fund necessary to continue this excellent project, and the House committee eliminated it entirely. Economy of that nature during this critical period would indeed be a farce.

A total of $31,584,000 was slashed from the Army appropriation. The appropriations committee did not repeat its ill-fated mistake of last year with respect to Army officers. The move to reduce officer strength from 12,000 to 10,000 was decisively beaten at that time. The committee showed good judgment in not bumping its head against the wall a second time. It is also to be commended for restoring an ample allowance for the National Guard. But there is no excuse for the elimination of Citizens' Military Training Camps at this critical time.

Representative Collins claims that the efficiency of the regular Army would not be impaired by the cuts which the committee has made. That statements calls for close scrutiny. As the Army budget was submitted to Congress it had been drastically trimmed. The House would do well to study every item and to make certain that the Army is not being crippled.

STIMULATING IMPROVEMENTS.

Philadelphia is providing a very practical example of the possibility of improving conditions by concerted action among its citizens. The "Renovize Philadelphia" campaign, inaugurated to stimulate building, replacements and repairs of all kinds, has already assumed important proportions. Public spirited civic leaders formed a large number of committees to make a personal canvass of the city and secure voluntary pledges from those who can take advantage of present low prices to make needed improvements.

These committees have already secured promises of work to be undertaken during the next six months aggregating more than $5,000,000. This cooperative movement to clean up, repair and renovate is contagious, and civic spirit is aroused in a manner that is highly beneficial for the business of the city in a period of stagnation. The Business Building committee has induced many owners to begin improvements that have long been contemplated. The Residence committee has found that many householders are quite willing to join in a general movement to improve the appearance of their homes or install new conveniences.

Among manufacturers also the committees have been able to inspire renewed hope for business, so that in various lines closed plants will be reopened or new machinery installed. A plumbing contractor, for example, who for many years engaged only in major installations, sensing the large amount of repair work that the present campaign is providing, has equipped a fleet of repair trucks that can respond for quick service.

The cumulative effect of all this minor activity is beginning to be felt by Philadelphia merchants. Samuel Vauclain, chairman of the board of the Baldwin Locomotive Works, is taking an active interest in Philadelphia's new movement, and says manufacturers could insure the return of normal business if they would all get together and put their plants in order. He holds to the sane belief that it will be found impossible to legislate prosperity, and that its return depends upon the courageous action of business and citizens themselves.

PEAK OF POPULATION.

Experts who have been at work on the vital statistics of the United States believe that the population will increase about 20 per cent more and then become stationary. Americans will reach their maximum number of 150,000,000 in 1970. This reasoning is surprising to the layman, since the last census figures show a birth rate of 18.9 per thousand while the death rate is only 11.4. These figures, however, according to statisticians of the life insurance companies, are misleading.

It is pointed out that the excess of births over deaths in this country has long been due to an abnormal age distribution of the population. The former large numbers of immigrants coming to this country provided a preponderance of men and women in the reproductive ages. Among these classes, also, the birth rate is considerably higher than among native Americans. Gradually, with the suspension of immigration, this disparity in ages is disappearing. Already it is estimated that the present statistical birth excess of 7.4 is not the "true" rate. The one which really exists shows an annual birth rate of 15.76 and a death rate of 15.97, or an actual loss of .21 per thousand per annum.

Reports of births are usually less complete than reported deaths, which permits of sufficient allowance to consider that the natural increase of the white population is at least equal to deaths. Last year the American birth rate declined nearly one per thousand as compared with the figures quoted for 1930. The death rate last year established a remarkably favorable record, but there can be comparatively little change expected on that side of the balance. Thus it is that the statisticians figure it out that unless immigration should be resumed, or unless the return of more prosperous times will increase the size of American families, another twenty years will see the Nation reaching the peak of its population.

FOR A MODEL PLAN.

New York State proposes to be forehanded with regard to liquor control. Bills have been introduced in the legislature for the immediate formation of an advisory commission to formulate plans for State regulation. The name of Alfred E. Smith has been prominently mentioned as the probable head of the board. Gov. Lehman has not committed himself with regard to the personnel of its membership, but Al Smith was at once hailed as its logical chairman.

No time is to be lost, as the commission is expected to provide measures for enactment by the present legislature in session at Albany. A system of licensing and a model plan of liquor control are contemplated, to be ready for prompt operation if Congressional action should legalize liquor traffic under State control.

A fund is provided for the work of the commission and it will have wide powers, with authority to call witnesses and ask for records that will facilitate its deliberations in devising regulatory machinery. The Governor was asked to appoint a dry representative on the commission, but Mr. Lehman held that as the board was not one to consider the wisdom of the eighteenth amendment, but rather to set up machinery for actual liquor control after repeal or modification of the Volstead act, he did not consider one who was opposed to repeal or modification a logical person for appointment.

Why not a second R. F. C. to relieve the first, and so on ad infinitum?

THE PHILIPPINES AND THE AMERICAN NAVY

By VICENTE VILLAMIN.

The Anglo-Japanese military alliance signed in London in 1902 and revoked in 1921 at the Washington conference on the limitation of armaments was one of the potent reasons for the building of a strong American Navy and the rushing to completion of the Panama Canal to promote the Atlantic-Pacific mobility of the American naval forces.

Despite the assurance of Lord Lansdowne, then the British secretary for foreign affairs, that the alliance was not directed against the United States but was intended primarily to maintain the Anglo-Japanese conception of tranquillity in Asia, President Theodore Roosevelt nevertheless did not dismiss as entirely hypothetical certain obvious possibilities, and proceeded vigorously to implement with fighting units a naval program for the United States.

It is the Washington four-power treaty of 1921 that revoked the Anglo-Japanese alliance. The revocation of this alliance not only removed a potential menace to the United States but also strengthened the growing Anglo-American accord in the Pacific, which today is the main prop to the relative stability of that region.

The political inducement and the territorial stake of the United States in becoming a signatory to this quadrilateral agreement is the Philippines. It stands to reason that if the United States should relinquish its sovereignty over that country the contractual consideration supporting the treaty with respect to the United States would disappear, and that can only mean the withdrawal of the United States as a party to that treaty.

In such a posture of affairs it is only logical to expect that the three remaining signatories—Great Britain, France and Japan—would conclude a new treaty to take the place of the four-power pact, which in turn, superseded the Anglo-Japanese alliance.

Under those circumstances America's international position would be profoundly affected from a naval standpoint. Although it would not be rational to predict the re-establishment of a new Anglo-Japanese alliance, it is reasonable to expect the gradual disintegration of Anglo-American mutual political interests in the Pacific and the consequent reconstitution of Anglo-Japanese coordination.

As a Pacific power the United States should be vitally interested in the possibilities of such new alignment. Reasoning solely by the logic of the new situation, the United States, facing a first-class naval power in the Atlantic and another one in the Pacific, may yet have to adopt a naval program calling for the combined naval strength of the two nations which were once allies.

It is not only cowardice but unsound international policy to subscribe to the counsel of fear and shout Uncle Sam back from the Orient where he exerts a stabilizing and moderating influence in behalf of international peace and amity.

POST HASTE

It can be foreseen now that two things are going to keep Mr. Roosevelt very busy—foreign and domestic problems.

Senatorial dignity may yet be rescued by senatorial indignation.

Can't the philologists give us a name for the leaden exchange between the nations Jeholing in Asia and Chacoing in South America?

The Philippine independence bill appears as indefensible as the islands will be if it becomes a law.

Senatorial prestige is the cumulative record of years of collective effort. It should not be possible for one member to discredit that reputation in as many days.

Confidential conferences disclose the paradox that the best minds do not always mind.

After the league considers the Manchurian question this week it will still be like boarding-house coffee—weak, unsettled, with many grounds for complaint.

A skimpy limit of seven commodities in the allotment bill. The House's face will be as red as a Bolshevik when the Senate invites in all farm products.

Next the manufacturers will be demanding an assured profit on their output.

And how about some kind of guaranteed support for the brain children of the alleged intellectuals?

Peru is right smart indignant that her offer to arbitrate whether she shall give back the Leticia watch is rejected by Colombia.

Russians seem to be all employed. Is it going to be necessary for us to be only half as efficient and wear out machines in three months?

By what fortunate miracle are the emergency bankruptcy bills before Congress considered nonpartisan matters?

That grape shot from California hit the wine bill in its weak spot.

There is a place on the border between Brazil and Venezuela that is as wild and useless as the Chaco or Leticia if those countries are looking for something to fight over.

"Don't gamble with the Navy," says Admiral Pratt. And Uncle Josephus took its liquor away 'way back during the occupation of Vera Cruz.

Relief for the idle is important, but if there isn't also relief for the budget there will be many more idle.

What's in a misnomer? Senator J. Ham Lewis says his talk with Roosevelt was not about pork, but plums.

THE DIFFERENCE.

Here's the difference, clear and plain:
Any one can shriek at pain.
Coward, traitor, fool or madman
Can let loose a flood of tears,
Wince and shrink and run away
When the skies grow dark and gray,
But it takes a soul heroic
To stand calm when danger nears.

Here's the difference, mark it down:
Any ignorant brute can frown,
Rant and rave and curse and whimper
When some plan of his goes wrong.
But to hide beneath a grin
Just how deep the hurt's sunk in
Calls for gallantry of spirit
And a brave man and a strong.

Here's the difference: To complain
Neither needs a heart nor brain,
And the commonest of persons
Can go whimpering about;
But to stand and never show
How you've suffered from a blow
Is the very badge of manhood
And the proof of courage stout.

If He Doesn't Know Long Division, He Never Got Beyond the Third Grade.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

IN this land of equality, as elsewhere, there are distinct classes of people that represent and illustrate the different stages of man's evolution.

These are not the arbitrary and commonly recognized classes—the poor and the rich, the nobodies and the somebodies, the humble and the high—but natural groups, distinguished from one another by the possession or lack of qualities that make the civilized man.

As you know, mankind does not advance as a unit. In each generation there is a minority that moves to higher ground and a majority that stands still. And as an army advancing by groups would have some of its units at rest all along the line of march, so in each generation the race of man contains groups that are established like milestones along the trail of civilization—each group occupying a position long since left behind by the leaders.

If you would know your own class you may discover it by following the trail of man's evolution and observing at what point you dropped out and made camp.

Consider the desires of the beasts—food and shelter, mating and conquest.

These also are common to men, from the lowest to the highest, but even the lowest type of man has something more—a desire for security that prompts him to direct and increase nature's productiveness.

The primitive planted and harvested to obtain abundance.

After him came a man, surfeited with quantity, who began to desire quality also. He wished to improve things.

And later appeared a man not content with the beauty and perfection of things—an idealist who aspired to improve himself. He was a righteous egoist, aloof from the faults and miseries of the world.

But at last came the selfless and compassionate man who pitied the hungry and the maimed and the heavily-burdened, and dreamed a splendid dream—that he might collaborate with God in creating a world free of misery and wrong and injustice.

There you have the steps by which the race advanced, and somewhere along that road you can find your own kind and the measure of your civilization.

As a man thinketh in his heart, so he is; and his desires measure the distance he has traveled from the jungle.

POLITICAL COMMENT

Meddling in Cuba.

Baltimore Sun.

Under the Platt amendment, adopted in 1901 and embodied in a permanent treaty between the United States and Cuba in 1903, this country asserted and Cuba recognized a right of intervention to preserve Cuban independence and to maintain "a government adequate for the protection of life, property and individual liberty." But as interpreted by Elihu Root, then Secretary of War, the United States intended the Platt amendment to cover nothing more than the exercise of the international police power under the Monroe Doctrine. That Mr. Root had only this in mind is indicated by his statement to the representatives of Cuba that "intervention will only take place to protect the independence of the Cuban republic from foreign attack, or when a veritable state of anarchy exists."

The present Cuban imbroglio does not come within either of these categories. It is a tragic state of affairs, but it is not a case for more of the meddling we have so often been guilty of in the Carribbean.

Why Not Cut Expenses?

Louisville Courier-Journal.

Some of the Democratic congressmen who were reported to have agreed upon a big increase of income taxes with the object of balancing the budget are now hedging by declaring that this plan is only to be considered as "a last resort."

But it will not be necessary to consider it at all if they redeem the Democratic campaign pledge to reduce the Government expenses by 25 per cent.

Such a reduction would remove the cause of the Treasury deficit, leaving no need of higher taxes to fill it.

Increasing taxes and then cutting down expenditures is the wrong procedure. It is putting the cart before the horse. First cut down expenditures; it will then be clear whether higher taxation is necessary, and if it should be, how much higher.

Mere Bagatelle.

Boston Globe.

The American public is prosperity-minded, at least; it persists in regarding a $20,000,000 default as a matter of chickenfeed.

No Lack of Experience.

Florida Times-Union.

If beer comes back, there will be millions who can qualify as master brewers, having had fourteen years of "cellar experience."

Rugs and Carpets.

Los Angeles Times.

The Senate has voted to sell off a large number of its office building rugs, but it is not known whether the offering includes sundry "magic carpets" that in campaign days were guaranteed to waft us back to normalcy.

Make Good on Economy.

Kansas City Star.

Representative Snell, of New York, Republican leader of the House, thinks it "evident that the Democrats are not going to do anything about balancing the budget at this session." It is evident, as well, that little of importance will be accomplished in the short session, regardless of which party may be responsible, or whether both may be responsible. But in the absence of immediate achievement, leaders of the next administration may go ahead planing for the 25 per cent reduction in Government costs, which stands as their one specific promise and definite obligation.

A Floundering Congress.

Providence Journal.

Critical comment is being made throughout the nation because Congress has neither a definite program to meet current needs nor any apparent intention of trying to formulate such a plan during the present session.

The situation would be ludicrous rather than pathetic were it not for the fact that this year's budget is well over a billion dollars off balance. In these circumstances it is disturbing to feel that there is apparently no consensus in Congress as to what additional taxes, if any, are to be imposed or as to what economies, if any, are to be ordered. A drifting attitude is not new in Congressional experience but this particular drift at this special time threatens to bury Federal economy so deep that the Roosevelt administration will have to dig long and hard before it can uncover it once more.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Plea for Education of Virginia School Children—Many Schools to Be Closed.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is a distressing fact that less than ten counties in the grand old Commonwealth of Virginia will be able to provide a full school term for children, notwithstanding the fact that the Old Dominion is said to be in better financial condition than any other State in the Union, unless it be New Hampshire.

"Closed!" It is a sign that will soon appear on the doors of thousands of our schools. The children will, figuratively, be told they can not have a full session because the money needed to provide for their education must be used for "something more important."

We evidently think that children can wait, but the other activities of the government must go on. Do we stop to consider the fact that if our children do not secure an education now, the next generation can not be trained for the problems which must confront it?

School budgets always have been entirely inadequate in the counties of Virginia, where the teacher is paid approximately half what her coworkers in the Nation receive. Following the reduced budgets set up last year, the State has been forced to make a double cut in its funds.

Is not the training of children for future usefulness a greater asset to the Commonwealth than a system of highways?

Is not their education worth more to the State than the development of a great national park, important as it is?

If we expect to reduce crime and criminal costs, must we not look to the schools to train this generation so that there will be fewer criminals in future years?

Virginia's economic and social future will be determined by what the public schools of today are. Every worthy parent will make any reasonable sacrifice for the welfare of his or her children. In many of our rural communities school buildings have been erected and equipped in part by the individual donations of patrons. Can we afford to allow a system which has been developed through many years of sacrifice to be lost during this period of depression?

The education and welfare of the children of Virginia is the State's greatest responsibility. Will we put first things first? Will we allow the schools to remain closed or will we hear the plea of the helpless children and give them a chance to be trained for future citizenship?

What Kind of Congressmen Do We Have, That They Would Sacrifice the Marines?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have just listened to a plea by Maj. Gen. Harbord over the radio. Gen. Harbord has appealed for help from the American public to bring pressure to bear on our congressmen so that the Marine Corps shall not, through lack of appropriations, lose its efficiency.

What kind of congressmen do we have that they have to be coerced into providing for an adequate Marine Corps? The youngest high school students in the country know what they are used for and that we need them.

Optimist Thinks Solution of Liquor Problem Has Been Found.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As an indication of the tenacity and elasticity of the human mind the long-continued argument as to whether and how prohibition shall go or stay is interesting. Certainly the remarkable mental resilience of Congress up against the cross-thought likker puzzle is encouraging to those who abhor the doctrine of the almian origin of man.

Certainly there is cause for rejoicing in the fact that seasoned statesmen think the enactment of satisfactory temperance laws is near at hand. As often happens in such cases, their final solution of the complicated problem is so simple that the wonder is it was not seriously considered in the first place. For in making definite distinction between nonintoxicating beer and hard likker the lawmakers may after all have found the key to a future of well-balanced temperance.

Under the prospective arrangement convenient drinking places can be licensed, where those whose systems will not tolerate a high percentage of alcohol can indulge in the beer that cheers but not inebriates. Eventually provision can be made for the specially regulated sale of ardent spirits to persons of a high degree of alcoholic tolerance. Thus the beer-drinking sheep may be kept separate from the hard-likker goats with no more restriction of personal liberty than is necessary in the safe functioning of good government.

HIGH HOPE.

Get at the Source and Destroy the Germ—Yellow Fever Analogy.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: When yellow fever was prevalent in Panama, Gen. Goethals discovered that the cause of the pestilence was the inoculation of the populace by the mosquito, and that the only way to prevent the spread of this dread disease was to eliminate the cause. Hence, by eradicating the mosquito, he removed the source of trouble, and rendered a valuable service to humanity. Therefore, if we eliminate the mosquito of selfishness we destroy the germ of greed and prevent the epidemic of crime and dishonor.

Forest Suggested As War Memorial

Americans and Canadians Want Conservationist Plan Followed.

Minneapolis, Jan. 15 (A.P.).—Establishment of a memorial to American and Canadian soldiers of the World War, in the form of an international forest of 10,000,000 acres, is being considered by conservationists of the two countries.

Approximately 300 persons, including many from Canada, will gather here Thursday to consider means of arousing public interest in such a memorial. Present plans would situate the forest along the international boundary, with 7,500,000 acres on the Canadian side.

Behind the movement are members of the Minnesota Izaak Walton League, Minnesota Department of the American Legion, the Quetico-Superior Council and several Canadian veteran organizations. Ernest C. Oberholzer, of Ranier, president of the Quetico-Superior Council, will outline plans for the project.

Shaw's Biographer To Sell Collection

Letters and Manuscripts of Irish Author Are to Be Auctioned.

Chapel Hill, N. C., Jan. 15 (A.P.).—Shaviana will go under an auctioneer's hammer in New York tomorrow, for Archibald Henderson, of Chapel Hill, George Bernard Shaw's official biographer, is selling one of the largest collections of literature of the Irish wit to be found in the world.

Henderson said he decided to sell the collection now because of "high interest" in Shaw at present that enhanced its value. He said the course was somewhat unusual as most collections of this kind usually are sold after the death of the party concerned.

The collection consists of 204 entries of letters, first editions and manuscripts—all from the pen of Shaw.

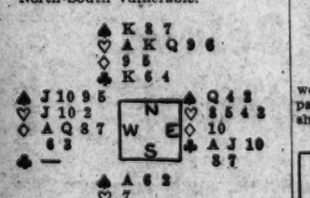
MASTERS OF BRIDGE.

V. F. BOLAND, of Cleveland, is not only recognized as one of the master players of the Middle West, but has designed a bid which is quite popular in his home city and northern Ohio. The bid is used in connection with the Culbertson System of bidding. It goes without saying that it does not appear to me as having either the merits of accuracy or simplicity. However, even an expert may have faulty bidding methods and still play the hands with wonderful accuracy.

Here is a hand played by Mr. Boland, in the finals of the Ohio State Contract Pair Championship, which discloses his skill as a player:

North—Dealer.
North-South vulnerable.



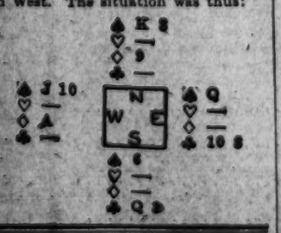
The Bidding.

North	East	South	West
1♡	Pass	2NT	Pass
3♡	Pass	3NT	Pass
Pass	Pass

Mr. Boland was fortunate enough to get a very favorable break on the hand, but this in no sense detracts from the credit due him for the development of an interesting squeeze, which netted him 2 extra tricks and, incidentally, the championship.

West's opening lead was the diamond 7, and Mr. Boland won with the Knave. His next step in the development of the hand was to lead the club deuce, and the fact that all five clubs, including three honors, were bunched against him in the East hand was immediately disclosed. East won this trick with the club Ace and returned the club Knave, but South declined to win, and East found himself in a hopeless position. The return of either a club, a spade or a heart promised south the same development. As a matter of fact, East led the spade 3, and the trick was won with the Ace in the closed hand. Now five hearts were taken, upon which South discarded three diamonds and a spade, and then a club was led from Dummy. East played the 7 and South won with the 9.

South had been compelled to discard a spade to hold his three clubs, and at this point South, when he led the club Queen, developed a squeeze on West. The situation was thus:

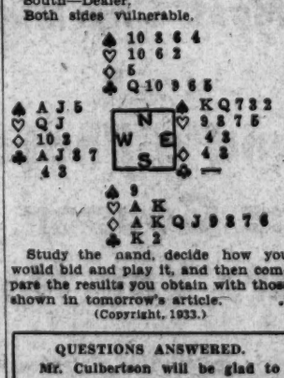


West was compelled to choose between establishing the diamond 9 or a spade, making both of Dummy's spades good. As a result, five-odd were made on the hand.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

The bidding and play of the hand printed below, will be discussed tomorrow:

South—Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.



Study the hand, decide how you would bid and play it, and then compare the results you obtain with those shown in tomorrow's article.

DRY LEADER PLEADS TO SOUTH TO SAY 'NO'

Mrs. Tilton Tells Meeting "Wall Street" Wet Drive Must B eBeaten.

Claiming that the South was throwing power to Wall street with its meek acquiesence to the repeal of prohibition, Mrs. William Tilton, chairman of the Women's National Committee for Education Against Alcohol last night exhorted a meeting of the Men's Allied Forces and the Women's Christian Temperance Union to "unfool the South."

Speaking at the Potomac Auditorium at Alexandria, Va., Mrs. Tilton stated that the West and South have been thoroughly fooled about the wet drive against "what was to be the South's greatest contribution to our history, prohibition."

The Eastern section of the country, she stated, knows that it will gain, the power of legislatures and Congress through the repeal of prohibition and is not taking into account that behind it are the liquor interests and the gangsters.

"They imagine," she said, referring to the Southern population, "that this wet drive is a moral drive, when really it is a money drive. I call on the South, the idealistic South, to find the still, small voice—regain its conscience and moral indignation and say 'no' to this wet drive of Wall street and Tammany combined. A drive whose main object is to get political control back East."

The prohibitionist stated that Virginia would remain dry if it puts principle before self and desires to help mankind.

NEWS ITEMS UNDER TECHNOCRACY.

(Under Technocracy it is claimed that the adults of America would have to work only four hours a day, four days a week with eight weeks vacation to live ten times better than they did in 1920. Labor will be measured in units of energy and paid for in certificates of energy. There will be no further necessity for private enterprise or savings.—Ed.

PASSING OF A GREAT MAN.

THE will of Lemuel P. Queelks, well-known business man, has been filed for probate. He left his entire estate consisting of an extra pair of pants, six energy unit certificates and a calabash pipe to charity.

Mr. Queelks entered the steel business as a mill boy and worked so diligently that for years the best scientists found it difficult to measure his energy flow. His income at the time of his death was 26 pink certificates a week, the equivalent of six pecks of potatoes, a leg of lamb, a round trip to Coney Island and an occasional rubber of bridge for 1 cent a point.

SUCCESSFUL MERCHANT TELLS ALL.

Chidsey P. Hemingway, one of the community's outstanding citizens, in an interview attributed his success to the fact he never worked more than four hours a day.

"All that I am," he said, "I owe to the fact that I was afraid of hard work and always quit the moment I began to feel tired. I made it my program to work only on Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, and take eight weeks' vacation every summer. This enabled me to prosper, marry well, raise a big family and find true success in life."

"What were your favorite hours of work?" he was asked.

"I had no favorite hours," he replied, "but usually could be found at my desk from 10 to 12 in the morning and from 3 to 5 in the afternoon. I always took three hours for lunch."

"What did you do with your three days off each week?"

"Just romped around and had a good time. Sometimes I would go down town and see what my energy units were worth in merchandise."

"What do you consider the greatest danger to the career of a young man today?" he was asked.

"Work," he replied, with feeling. "I wish to warn all boys against diligence. It is impossible to get anywhere by putting a lot of time on the job. Secondly, I would warn them against thrift. What's the sense of saving anything? Life is just a bowl of units."

ROW OVER PLUMBING.

Luther Ginnipp and Max T. Gunch were arrested following a dispute over a plumbing bill. Mr. Ginnipp, a plumber, was called in to fix a leak in the kitchen sink. He charged Mr. Gunch 16 energy certificates. Mr. Gunch remonstrated and the plumber insisted that his gauge showed he had used 32 units of energy in fixing the pipe, and the union rate was two units of energy for one certificate.

Mr. Gunch accused the plumber of having a defective gauge and threatened to report him to the Technocracy Bureau and a fight resulted.

CRONIN'S GRIT WON MANAGER'S JOB, SAYS GRIFFITH

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

THE big league baseball magnates are getting out from under the tremendous overhead expenses that spread so much red ink over the business office ledgers for the past three seasons, according to the information that comes to this department.

The new form of retrenchment has taken the form of a new clause in the players' contracts which has delayed the mailing of the same for several weeks. No public announcement was made of the new clause at the recent joint meeting of the big league owners, but the wording is there in black and white and the ball players are taking the rap.

The new clause is aimed at relieving the big league owners of the responsibility of maintaining the major league salaries paid ball players who are released to the minors. Hereafter big leaguers who are transferred to the minors must accept salary cuts that will bring them within the minor league salary limit.

Majors No Longer Help Carry Load.

It had been the custom among big league owners to pay to the ball players the difference between their major league and minor league salaries. For example, if the Washington Club optioned a $6,000-a-year man to Chattanooga, whose salary limit provided for no higher than a $3,000 wage, the Washington Club was bound to make up the difference to the ball player.

Several deals of this type by a big league club would find the club carrying a tremendous overhead without benefit of the players' services and the action of the recent joint meeting has absolved the majors of this responsibility. Under the new clause, the ball players unable to make the big league grade must suffer the consequences of sharp cuts in salaries.

The International League, a Class AA circuit, has adopted a salary limit of $39,000 for the season with a 19-player limit, thus virtually every player transferred to the league from the majors must accept a substantial cut which in former years sons the club transferring him would bear. But not next season.

Club Owners Have The Edge.

The club owners have all the best of the player's contract. Even Babe Ruth's $75,000 salary of last year was not binding on the Yankees if they chose to discharge him. As long as he played for the club he could collect on a $75,000-a-year basis, but if the Yankees' owners wished to be rid of his services, all that is required in the contract is a ten-day notification of the same.

But the comparatively high salaries paid ball players put the club owners in an advantageous position to enforce wage slashes. The players have Commissioner Landis as a last court of appeal if a wage cut is too steep, but unless the slash is outrageous, the commissioner rarely acts in the case. Thus the magnates can trim salaries regularly with little chance of holdouts, for baseball, even with a wage cut, is a high-salaried profession.

The business of wage cuts, however, is extremely delicate, for the club owners must keep their athletes content or risk indifferent performances which could keep a team out of the pennant fight at great cost to the club in gate receipts. The indifferent player, of course, would be subject to another salary cut or his release the next season, but in the meanwhile the club would be deprived of an asset that may mean the difference between a successful season or a ruinous one.

Thomson, Wood Win Golf Match on 27th

Dave Thomson, chairman of the golf committee at Manor, and H. G. Wood gained revenge for last week's close defeat at the hands of Tommy Bones, left-handed star from Columbia, and G. E. Moore by winning yesterday's match, 1 up on the twenty-seventh hole.

Bones and Moore won the first match 1 up. Yesterday they were all square at the end of the eighteenth. Thomson and Wood won the twenty-seventh hole to settle the issue. On the fourteenth after hitting his ball out of bounds and being trapped on his third, Wood holed out from the bunker to gain a half for his side after Bones, 5 feet from the cup with his second, missed his putt.

Billy Petrolle In Boxing Feature

Meets Van Klaveren Friday in Attempted Comeback.

Ramage - Griffiths in 10-Rounder Tomorrow on Coast.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15 (A.P.).—Billy Petrolle, terror of the lightweight and welterweight divisions for several years, comes to the rescue of a fading sock market this week.

The Duluth veteran engages young Bep Van Klaveren, the Dutch "windmill," in the feature ten-rounder of Madison Square Garden's regular Friday night card.

It will be Petrolle's first start since he took a sound beating from Champion Tony Canzoneri in a lightweight title match here early in November. After that licking, Petrolle said he was through attempting to make the lightweight limit and would confine himself exclusively to the welterweights in the future.

Petrolle Choice Over Van Klaveren.

Petrolle will be a strong favorite over Van Klaveren, although the Dutchman, a tireless but comparatively light puncher, has been impressive in his first few starts in this country.

Lee Ramage, San Diego youngster, who created a stir among the heavyweights some months ago when he checked Steve Hamas' winning streak, encounters Tuffy Griffiths, of Sioux City, Iowa, in a ten-rounder at Los Angeles Tuesday night.

Bouts on the national schedule include:

MONDAY—At Boston (Arena), Sammy Slaughter, Terre Haute, Ind., vs. Norman Conrad, Wilton, N. H., middleweights, 10 rounds; at San Francisco, Tom Patrick, Los Angeles, vs. Fred Lenhart, Spokane, heavyweights, 10; at New York (St. Nicholas Arena), Walter Cobb, Baltimore, vs. Hans Birkie, Germany, heavyweights, 10; at Newark, Eddie Ran, Poland, vs. Jay Mecadon, South Orange, N. 3-Cushion Cue Title Play Starts Tonight

Chicago, Jan. 15 (A.P.).—Augie Kieckhefer, Chicago southpaw billiard artist, will start his drive for a twelfth world three-cushion championship tomorrow night against Clarence Jackson, of Detroit.

The defending champion and his opponent will fill the feature spot of the opening program, but the inaugural match will be played in the afternoon between a pair of veterans, Otto Reiselt, of Philadelphia, 1932 runner-up, and Tiff Denton, of Kansas City. The second afternoon engagement will be played by Arthur Thurnblad, a former champion, and J. N. Boseman, jr., of Vallejo, Calif. Welker Cochran, of Hollywood, wizard of the balkline ranks, will make his bok in three-cushion play in the other night match against Allen Hall, of Chicago.

Each match will be at 50 points, with each of the ten entrants playing 45 matches over a period of eighteen days. The rest of the field includes Johnny Layton, of Sedalia, Mo., and Frank S. Scoville, of Buffalo, N. Y., who will get into action Tuesday.

The winner of the long tournament will receive $5,000, a diamond medal and 15 per cent of the receipts, in addition to the world title.

Millers Oppose Title Play-Off Plan of A. A.

Minneapolis, Jan. 13 (A.P.).—Mike Kelley, president of the Minneapolis baseball club of the American Association, said today he plans to renew his fight against the league's new championship play-off idea, when the association owners meet in Chicago late this month.

Under the plan, recently adopted, the leader of the eastern division clubs will meet the leader of the western half in a seven-game series for the pennant at the end of the regular playing season.

"What could be sillier than a club, after winning the pennant in a 154-game schedule, engaging in a seven-game play-off with the team finishing in fifth place, to prove its right to the championship?" said Kelley.

The Millers' owner opposed the plan at the recent association meeting at Columbus, and is trying ti line up enough votes to have it rescinded at the coming Chicago meeting. He hopes to get the backing of the St. Paul, Kansas City and Toledo clubs, he said.

The Grip Most Important Golf Factor, Says Sarazen

(This is the first of a series of three interviews with Gene Sarazen on golf and golfers. Another will follow tomorrow.)

By BRIAN BELL.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 15 (A.P.).—Gene Sarazen sat propped up in bed at a Santa Monica hospital and talked of golf and golfers. The man who had conquered par hundreds of times on championship courses of the United States and Great Britain had fallen a victim of influenza during the playing of the Los Angeles open and was bunkered for a week in a hospital room.

Now convalescent and with recovery assured, he chatted of the game that has been good to him, making him a world figure and rewarding him with five championships in ten years, two United States opens, two P. G. A. titles and one British open.

"What is the most important part of a golfer's equipment?" he was asked.

"The grip," was the unhesitating reply.

"The first thing a player should do when he finds himself shooting off the line is to look at his grip. Many golfers grip their clubs as if they were milking a cow.

One Hand Will Not Fight the Other.

"One hand will not fight the other if the player will grip the club in the fingers and not the palms and see that the left thumb has plenty of room with no fear of being pinched as it lies along the right side, not on top, of the shaft in the palm of the right hand.

"I use the interlocking grip but I do not advise every golfer to adopt it. The overlapping grip, I believe, is just as effective if the hands have developed a lot of strength. I concentrated on a grip that would enable me to put power in my shots. Once a great pro told me I never would be a good golfer because my fingers were short. I developed strength in these undersized hands of mine by swinging an overweighted club literally for hours."

Suddenly Sarazen became the interviewer by firing a question.

"Did you ever see Bob Jones shank an iron shot?"

The reporter hastened to assure the champion that he had not and neither for that matter had he seen the current champion shank one either. The reference to the present champion was ignored and Gene continued:

"I'll tell you why Jones does not shank his shots. He has a correct standardized grip.

Golf Two-Handed Game.

"Golf is a two-handed game and a player's success depends entirely on his hands and how he uses them.

"Many instructors will tell you the left hand should be in control of the up swing. I don't agree. Long ago I turned away from the old theory that the golf swing was a left-handed proposition. The club at its best is brought back with the right hand, then the left takes command and brings it down.

"I have passed up a lot of nonsense I have heard covering the necessity for pivoting and hitting from the inside out and rolling the wrists before and after hitting the ball.

"My idea is that when one gets a correct grip and proper stance, takes the club back with the right hand and brings it down with the left, the wrists, pivot and follow through will take care of themselves."

Tomorrow—Some golf shots.

Gene Sarazen, on Mend, Has His Tonsils Removed

Santa Monica, Calif., Jan. 15 (A.P.).—Departure of Gene Sarazen, British and United States open golf champion, from a hospital to which he was taken when stricken recently by influenza, was delayed today by an operation for removal of his tonsils.

His physician, Dr. Robert O'Neal, said Sarazen's discharge was now set tentatively for Wednesday. The golfer has announced he plans to leave immediately after for Miami, Fla.

"Mr. Sarazen has virtually recovered from the attack of influenza, which forced him from the Los Angeles open golf tournament," Dr. O'Neal said. "We were about to order his discharge from the hospital tomorrow when a final inspection showed his tonsils infected to an extreme degree. So we had them out."

The girls' game was close until the final quarter, but the boys' tilt was never in doubt despite a Martinsburg line-up dotted with substitutions. Rhodes was the outstanding scoring star for the winners, while Levings led the losers. The win was Martinsburg's fourth straight.

All-Star Card At Portner's Tomorrow

Ring Experts Rating Dougan-Caplan Go as Best Listed.

Meola-Davis Clash Is Promising on 34-Round Program.

FIGHT fans journeying to Portner's Arena in Alexandria tomorrow night to attend Frankie Mann's all-star card of 34 rounds will cast their eyes on a number of boxers who are skilled in various departments of the game.

A newcomer to this section, Angelo Meola, who tackles Roddy Davis, District lightweight pride, in one of the five 6-rounders, is hailed as a great Italian prospect. Handled by Joe McCubbin, of Baltimore, Meola is reported to be a rough, tough scrapper who knows how to handle himself in any situation.

Davis Out to Redeem Himself.

Davis is anxious to redeem himself for the one-round knockout suffered at the hands of Joe Britten at Portner's last month. Until he was felled by the veteran Britten, young Davis, Eastern High athlete, had a string of eleven straight victories. However, in his final workout yesterday, he indicated to his faithful trainer, Harry Groves, that he planned to blaze another unbeaten trail.

While aMtchmaker Mann is not featuring any one fight, ring experts are of the belief that the duel between Leroy Dougan, former flash from Arkansas, and Izzy aCplan, Baltimore's latest featherweight sensation, will be outstanding. Only a youngster, Dougan has been fighting actively throughout the South and East for the past four years and has engaged in more than 150 matches. Dougan, a willing mixer, knows how to take his punches and erturn them with greater punishment. In his first appearance three weeks ago, he was held to a draw by Harry Kid Groves, of Baltimore. The next week he walloped Joey Schwartz and last Tuesday made a sensational come-back to decision Young Jack Getnile, hard-hitting taxicab driver. Dougan is one of the best preliminary boys to show at Portner's. Caplan, a strong left-handed battler, administered a sound thrashing to Doug Swetman last week.

Essinger-Tramberia Promise Action.

Two boys of the slam-bang type will be brought together in another six. They are Willie Essinger and Jimmy Tramberia. Essinger has a strong right and Tramberia also is powerful with the same hand.

Ray Bowen, who admits he fought a "stupid battle" against Jimmy Reed, will attempt a comeback against Lloyd Phelps, Arizonan. Bowen has a big following in town; Phelps, a coming youngster, stepped out last week and stopped Joe Chaney, Baltimore veteran, in two rounds.

A grudge match looms in the six-rounder between Henry Irving, pride of the Northeast, and Walter Kirkwood, late of Norfolk, Va. In the past two years, Irving has scored ten knockouts and has been flattened only once. Last February he lost an eight-rounder to Kirkwood at Alexandria and ever since that beating has been gunning for revenge.

Joe Doty, now under Jack Quigley's wing, and Tommy Horn, Baltimore featherweight, will start the fireworks in a four-rounder.

Tickets are on sale at Vic's Sport Shop.

Runyan's Golf Is Praised By Pros

Accurate Approaching Key to Success at Agua Caliente.

Macdonald Smith Was Pattern of Former Arkansas Caddy.

By PAUL ZIMMERMAN.

AGUA CALIENTE, Mexico, Jan. 15 (A.P.).—Horton Smith, who has missed three Agua Caliente championships by two strokes in as many starts, at least had the satisfaction today of saying, "I told you so."

Paul Runyan, modest little professional from the Metropolis Country Club, of White Plains, N. Y., who won the first prize money in the fourth annual tourney yesterday, was heralded four years ago by Smith as a comer.

"You watch out for that boy Runyan," the tall pro from Oak Park, Ill., had cautioned. "His game is sound and he has the stuff to come through."

Finished 12th Behind Sarazen.

But no one paid any particular attention then to Runyan, young former caddie from Hot Springs, Ark. He finished twelfth in the $25,000 event which Gene Sarazen won, and collected only $225.

The next yaer, as Craig Wood's assistant at Bloomfield, N. J., Runyan did not make the winter tour. Last season he pulled up ti eighth place and dragged down $425. He shot 287, 1 under par for 72 holes, to win first prize of $1,500 yesterday.

Smith was 2 strokes back of the leader, as he had been in every tournament he has played over the Long Baja, Calif., course. In the first tourney four years ago Sarazen shot 295 to win, and Smith's tota lwas 297 to tie for second with Al Espinoza.

In 1931 John Golden and George Von Elm tied for first with 293 strokes. The tall Pine, who at time hailed from Missouri, was third with 295. Last year he did not compete because of a broken wrist. His score yesterday was 289, a stroke over par.

Macdonald Smith His Pattern.

Runyan's victory was interesting to another Smith, who fared rather badly in the four days of play—one MacDonald of Carnousite.

Runyan as a lad caddied for Mac Smith at Hot Springs. Smith became his idol and as nearly as possible Runyan patterned his game after the veteran's style.

He is not a long hitter, but plays a steady game off the tees and depends on accurate approaches rather than long putts for his birdies.

The tournament players return to the United States for a one-day amateur-pro test at Long Beach for $500 and the gate Tuesday. Then they journey to Phoenix, Ariz., where the annual Arizona open, with $1,500 in prize money, starts Friday.

Navy Five Faces Test In Penn Saturday

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 15 (A.P.).—The Navy basket ball team will invade Philadelphia Saturday for its big game with the University of Pennsylvania, an obstacle it must surmount to keep its season record and string of victories intact.

The Middies have won 13 consecutive court games, nine during the latter part of the 1931-32 season and four during the present campaign. Four major opponents remain on the schedule to be played.

Navy will face Penn Saturday in Philadelphia after meeting Lafayette here on Wednesday. Maryland, who defeated the Middies last year, Pittsburgh and Army will be played later in the season.

Climaxed by the 44-to-22 victory over Duke yesterday, the Navy quintet has had little trouble with its four early season opponents. Before the Christmas holidays, William and Mary was defeated, 57 to 46, and Franklin and Marshall, 45 to 21. American University, which won a year ago, was stopped, 39 to 24.

Flu Epidemic Forces Army to Cancel Events

New York, Jan. 15 (A.P.).—Precautionary measures to prevent the spread of influenza have been continued for another week at the United States Military Academy, it was announced today.

All sports events scheduled for January 18 and January 21, with the exception of polo and hockey, have been canceled. Cadet "hops," chapel formations and moving picture shows also have been called off.

Athletic events canceled include basket ball games with Pennsylvania and Providence College, a plebe basket ball game with Mackenzie School, boxing meet with Western Maryland, wrestling with Springfield College, and plebe swimming with Manual Training High School. The polo game with Cornell and the hockey contest with Yale will be held.

Babe Didrikson Again Beaten in Cue Match

New York, Jan. 15 (A.P.).—Ruth McGinnis, of Honesdale, Pa., gave Mildred (Babe) Didrikson another neat trouncing in the third block of their pocket billiard match today. She won the block, 100 to 19 in 24 innings, and gained a lead of 300 to 46 with one block yet to be played.

The Pennsylvania girl had a high run of 18 in the fourth inning and also put together two runs of 9 and four of 8. Miss Didrikson's best cluster was one of 4 in the twenty-third inning.

TONIGHT'S GAMES.

SECTION B.

Congress Heights vs. Delaware & Hudson, Hine, 7:15; Griffith Consumers vs. Anacostia Business Men, Roosevelt, 8.

BUREAU of Investigation's game with the Northern Preps in Section A tonight features the card of five games that ushers in a week of intensive action in the ponderous Community Center League. On paper the Preps, directed by the old maestro, Ted Otte, have but a slim chance of stopping Ty Rauber's crew, but you can wager your old straw hat there will be plenty of action and enough thrills to keep Aunt Emma in hysterics for a week.

An unblemished record will be sullied with defeat Tuesday night at Eastern where Potomac Boat Club and Mount Vernon lock horns. The two are deadlocked with Buck Buckley's Delaware & Hudson quintet for the top rung of the ladder. Mount Vernon has another tough game the following night at Central, where it plays the promising Olmsted Grill youngsters.

Investigation Plays Sholl's.

Thursday brings with it the feature attraction of the week, Investigation vs. Sholl's. The walls of Central's gym should bulge with the mass of humanity expected to jam its way within to witness the fray.

Whether the hamburger boys can shake off the Department of Justice bloodhounds is the burning question of the moment. Eddie Colliflower, Les Singman, Will Fisher and Jimmy Ryan are four good reasons why the flatfeet are slight favorites to win. Fisher played with Sholl's last season when it captured the unlimited A. A. U. crown under the Saks banner.

Kiesel, Sam Hook, Bobby Lucas, Bernie Jones and Johnny Sherman are five equally good reasons why Sholl's supporters are backing the team to the limit. Dick Mothershead, Beau Brummel pilot, dug down deep into his sock for the necessary filthy lucre in support of the cheers for the team. When the wily Mothershead lays it on the line the other team must be in a tough spot.

Garland High Scorer Of Virginia Quintets

Richmond, Va., Jan. 15 (A.P.).—Garland, Roanoke College forward, paced Virginia Conference scorers today, but a throng of sharpshooters were fast on his trail to dispute the leadership of the rangy Maroon.

Second honors went to Berryman, Hampden-Sydney forward, who caged 32 points. Three Roanoke College players were grouped closely behind him, however—Purvine, with 31 points; Turner, 27, and Wermick, 26.

Perlowski, of Richmond, who came fifth with 25 points, had the best game average, however, scoring his quarter of a hundred points in only two games, while Roanoke and Hampden-Sydney players participated in four contests.

Sells, American University center, who participated in only a pair of contests, had 24 points. Levin, of Randolph-Macon, had 21 points; Leverton, Richmond, 19; Gallinant, William and Mary, 18, and Litwin, William and Mary, 17.

The leaders:

Garland, f., Roanoke, 40; Berryman, f., Hampden-Sydney, 32; Purvine, f., Roanoke, 31; Turner, g., Roanoke, 27; Wermick, c., Roanoke, 26; Perlowski, g., Richmond, 25.

Sells, c., American, 24; Levin, g., f., Randolph-Macon, 21; Leverton, f., Richmond, 19; Gallant, g., William and Mary, 18; Litwin, g., William and Mary, 17.

BASEBALL FETE WEDNESDAY

The Columbia Heights Business Men's Association will give a banquet in honor of its baseball team Wednesday night at 8 o'clock at 1430 Park road northwest. The team won the Capital City League championship in a grueling race last season. Individual gold baseballs will be presented the players by the association.

Added Duties Not to Affect His Play

New Manager Took Post After Hearing of Hardships.

Joe Capable of Facing Post's Troubles, Says President.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

MANY Washington baseball fans are fearing that, by naming Joe Cronin manager of the Nationals, President Clark Griffith is taking a chance on ruining a perfectly good shortstop with no certainty that he is getting a capable leader. The Nat owner was asked his views on this subject last night and he simply leaned back, took a deep puff from his cigar, and chuckled.

"Listen," he said, "I knew what I was doing when I turned over the job to Joe and he knew what he was doing when he accepted it. He'll make good as a leader—don't make any mistake about that—and you'll see that it won't effect him one iota as a player, either.

"His appointment wasn't any hit-or-miss proposition, for I took plenty of time considering his qualifications from all angles and then I spent nearly two hours with him showing him what a hard job managing a club was and trying to discourage him from accepting my offer.

"Get this straight, I wanted him to take the job, but I wanted him to know that it was no bed of roses. I explained to him just what he would be up against and ever suggested that, if he wanted to, he could stick along as a private for a few more years before taking charge.

Joe Told of Manager's Hardships.

"I told Joe about my own experiences as a manager—impressed upon him how everything he did would be second-guessed by the fans; how he had to guard himself both personally and on the field against getting a reputation for having a swelled head simply because of some little thing he might do; how he would have to toughen himself up against 'riding,' and how he would have to take the good with the bad and keep his head up and his men's spirits high no matter how dark things looked.

"Not only that, but I told Joe the history of the cases of his predecessors here, including that of Bucky Harris, who, eevn though he gave Washington two pennants and a world's championship, was practically booed out of town a few years later.

"And, after I got through, Cronin was more anxious to take the job than ever. That shows that he not only has confidence in himself but has a fighting heart—and a fellow like that is bound to make good whether he's doing double duty or not."

As a matter of fact, Griffith started watching Cronin almost from the day in the summer of 1926 that he joined the Nates and forced Bobby Reeves out of the line-up as regular shortstop. He liked the seriousness of the peppery youngster and, above all, the manner in which he developed as a student of the game.

The following spring, the last year the Nats trained at Tampa, Cronin was still rated as just a rookie. Manager Walter Johnson, on the job for the first time, had Joe playing second fiddle for a while, while he looked over Reeves, Jackie Hayes and Charley Gooch. Even then, Cronin was playing short left field in practice, but showing signs of thinking while awaiting a chance to sneak up into the first line of defense. He was always studying out plays and asking questions.

And Cronin has been asking questions ever since, despite the fact that in 1930, only his second full season as a regular, he was voted the most valuable player to his team in the American League.

Cronin does not know it all yet, but he knows enough, Griffith believes. He is a stickler for details, and, as the Nat owner sees things, he will have these ironed out and things running in proper order before the season is very old, thus eliminating worries over managerial details which might affect his own play.

Had Taste of Job Last Year.

"Of course," added the Nat head, "Joe's going to have his troubles. There will be sick players and hurt players and plays going wrong which will interfere with his plans, but I miss my guess if these happenings will throw

RACING OFFICIALS PREFER $2 BETTER, SAYS COLONEL WINN

Gives Advice To Horse Players

Play 'Em as You Can Pay 'Em, Code of Turf Patriarch.

Plungers End Broke; Veteran Hasn't Bet Since 1902.

By PAUL MICKELSON.

CHICAGO, Jan. 15 (A.P.).—Railbirds say that all horse players die broke but they wouldn't if they listened to Col. Matt Winn, the 71-year-old patriarch of the Kentucky Derby.

The colonel knows his hoss racing after watching the ponies as a railbird and official for 55 years and his advice is "play 'em as you can pay 'em."

"A lot of race goers think we race officials like the big shots, who stroll up to the pari-mutuel windows with hundred dollar bills in their hands," the colonel said during a fanning bee, "but they're wrong. Don't fall off your chair but I'll tell your something. We don't like plungers around the race tracks. Give us the fellow who's a $2 player every time.

"And I'll tell you why. Horse racing is one of the greatest and most honest of sports. Along comes a player who plunges. He's a cinch to lose in the end and he's the first to cry. He hurts racing because he can't afford the sport. Next to him strolls a man in the $2 mutuel ticket line. He comes out to the track once or twice a week, bets what he can afford to lose and doesn't neglect the business that gets his bread and butter.

Gets a Kick Out Of Races.

"If he loses, he gets a fine day's outing and a flock of thrills. If he wins, even though it's only a few dollars, he gets a great kick out of it. No fourflushing, no heart aches for him. He has enjoyed himself. The sport of kings is still the sport of the common people. Maybe the returns from the mutuels, the track's percentage, will be less but in the end racing will flourish and get on a sounder and brighter basis."

If you have any stray medals around, kindly ship all of them to Col. Winn. The colonel was a fancy free horse player once and plunged plenty when he got something good. But when he was placed in charge of the Kentucky Derby in 1902, he resolved never to place another bet as long as he was an official at a track. And he hasn't broken his resolution. He gets tips on "good things" by the thousands over a year at many tracks in which he is interested but refuses to relent.

"Doesn't it bother you, colonel?" he was asked.

"Nope, not at all," he shot back. "As a official I don't believe I should bet. Anyway, I get just as big a kick out of a horse race as the man who lays his money on the line. I take an interest in horses and almost kick fences down sometimes pulling for them to win and make good."

Colonel Never Gives Out Tips.

Yas, suh! The Kentucky colonel gets plenty of information from the feed box but he doesn't go for it. Neither does he give it out.

One of his best stories—and he can spin yarns by the hour—is about a woman acquaintance who persisted in asking him for "tips" at Washington Park. As he refused, she mentioned that one stable owner had given her a "hot" one.

"Save your money," Col. Winn advised. "If that horse ever wins a race, I'll eat him."

Three weeks later, the woman came rushing breathlessly into his office.

"That horse won, he won, he won!" she shouted, "and I'm bringing him in, so you have to eat him right now."

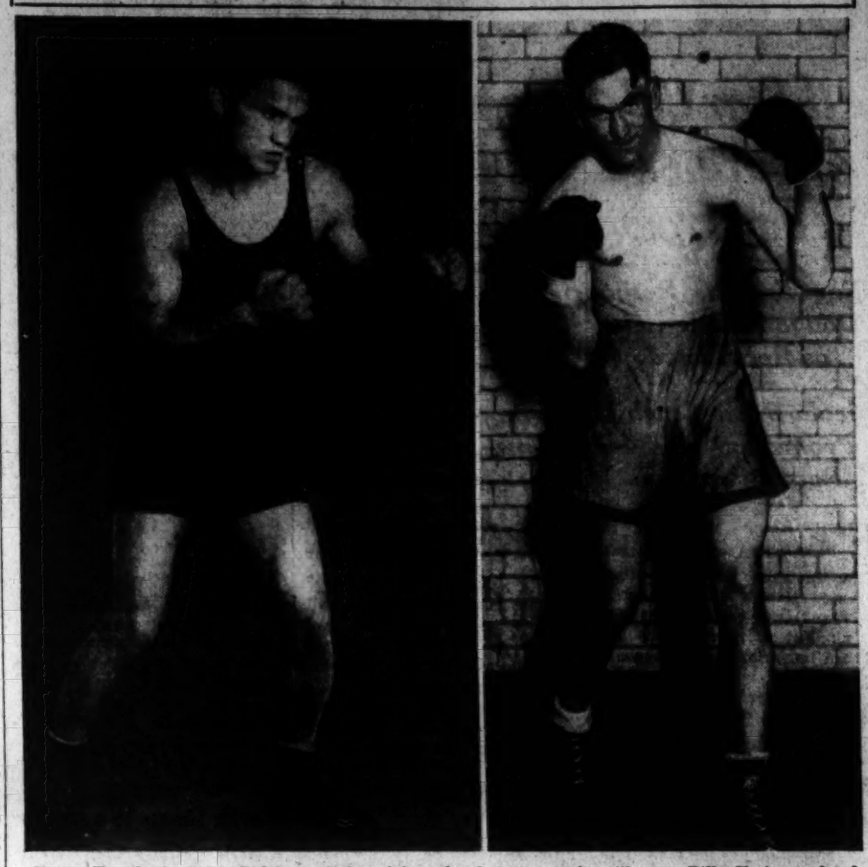
Sluggers on All-Star Card at Portner's Arena



Jimmy Tramberia (left), Baltimore lightweight, who dotes on sock, will meet Billy Essinger, local lad, in one of the six-rounders at Alexandria tomorrow night. Henry Irving (right), will attempt to repeat last month's victory over Walter Kirkwood. Irving boasts 10 knockouts in 19 fights.

AT THE POST

with Bill Bennings

FIRST RACE—MEKACHEE, thought to be strictly a mudder, came through with a promising performance here on a fast track and seems to be dropping down enough in class tomorrow to take the measure of this field. ALLEGRETTO looks like a horse that will cause the top fellow trouble. WATCHGIRL will be dangerous in the stretch run.

SECOND RACE—HARLEM, after an outing here, appears ready to take a set of brackets. Was rested after lesving Kentucky and has worked impressively since arriving at this course. LADY MENIFEE is a solid article and drops enough weight to rate much consideration in this field. The show to ELKHART.

THIRD RACE—The Greentree Stable has a strong hand in this test with ABSOLUTION. This one is sharp as a tack and there should be no mistakes. BELL CAP has fine works as a recommendation and should save the place from GOOD SCOUT.

FOURTH RACE—BURNSIDE may be as much as 4-1 in this field and I'm giving him a chance to do his stuff. Of course, BILL LOONEY will be the favorite and must be beaten. THISTLE FERN is another money possibility.

FIFTH RACE—MAKING BUBBLES barely missed being a Bennings winner the last time when beaten a snoot. Tomorrow I expect a different ride. SKIRL has shown speed here, but was forced wide the last time. ANNE L. is good enough to take third.

SIXTH RACE—BONNIE CAP has 102 pounds up and seeks her fourth straight victory in this. Has speed and courage and can hardly miss. CATINO could be the place horse ahead of the unlucky SIZZLING.

SEVENTH RACE—BLUE DAMSEL ran second the last time, but I'm going to try to make her take the measure of the highly touted TREK tomorrow. KLIP DRIWT to show.

EIGHTH RACE—PRINCE RENO, STARCH and CHATSON is the way I prefer them in the finale.

COMPANY F WINS ON COURT.

Company F defeated the Hyattsville A. C. by a score of 29-25 in a close game yesterday at Hyattsville. The guardsmen got out in front at the start and managed to stay there despite the persistent attack of their opponents. Bassford and Kidwell starred for the winners, while McCann led Hyattsville.

WATERS HIGH SCORER IN SERIES

Eastern Ace Credited With 35 Points in School Play.

LEAN and loose-jointed Al Waters, Eastern forward, leads the race for individual scoring honors in the inter-high school series with a total of 35 points, according to figures compiled by the official scorer. The hard working star of Coach Mike Kelley's team found the net for thirteen field goals and made good on nine free tosses in twelve chances to lead the other performers.

Not very far behind with 29 to his credit is Shorty Harris, tough little Roosevelt guard. One of the outstanding players in the series and a colorful figure on the floor, Harris has been the sparkplug in Roosevelt's machine this season. He sank eleven field goals and seven of eleven foul shots.

Five Central Players In First Ten.

Other players grouped in the first 10 and their scores to date are Carroll Shore, Central, 23; Bill Burke, Central, 22; Joe Sherman, Roosevelt, and Bernie Reichhardt, Tech, 21; Tom Nolan, Eastern, 20; Jack Moulton, Central, and Carroll Daly, Tech, 19; Buddy Nau, Central, 18.

The figures reveal the potency of Central's big four, Burke, Moulton, Shore and Nau. With two games yet to be played before the conclusion of the first half, both with teams apparently weaker than the pair they have already vanquished, one of the quartet is expected to take the lead. Waters has only one more opportunity to boost his total for the first half, and that against Tech.

EXTRA-PERIOD GAME.

In a game decided only after an extra period of play, the K. C. Catholic Boys Club 145-pound quintet defeated St. Stephen's, 36-34, yesterday on the Caseys' court. Only two seconds of the extra period remained when Joe Buscher poised himself for a pot shot that swished through for the winning points. Artie Nock and Joe Batten topped the winners in scoring, while Joray was high for the Saints.

STAR RATING SOUGHT BY COLEMAN

Mat's Mighty Atom to Meet Garibaldi in Feature Thursday.

FAST-STEPPING Abie Coleman, mighty midget of the mat, will be furnished the opportunity of attaining the topmost rung in popularity at Washington Auditorium Thursday night. Should he upset Gino Garibaldi, Italian firebrand, the five-foot "miracle man" automatically will qualify as a huge drawing card here.

By far the shortest grappler in the game today, rassling's little Tarzan already has captured the fancy of the crowd through the medium of his acrobatic cleverness and stand-up aggressiveness. In Garibaldi, however, he faces by far the toughest man assigned him since his auditorium advent.

Garibaldi Rought And Ready.

Good enough to have tossed virtually every one sent against him locally save Champion Jimmy Londos, Garibaldi is famed for his bruising and free-for-all tactics. All of which argues well for a wild evening, inasmuch as Abie himself can be rough when the occasion demands.

Growling 45 minutes in the semi-final will be Dr. Ralph Wilson, long time idol here, and Dick Daviscourt, a rough-house of the first water.

Thirty-minute bits slate: Paul Jones vs. Hans Kampfer; Joe Cox vs. Pat McKay, and Babe Caddock vs. Jacques Humberto.

SEXTET SEEKS TALENT.

More candidates for the Olympia girls' basket ball team are wanted by Miss Dora Willner, coach and captain. Olympia has a game tomorrow night with Powelll Junior High, and all aspirants for places are requested to report before 8:30 o'clock.

BOXING BITS Hereabouts

WHAT has become of the fistic stars of yesteryear who performed hereabouts? Are they still fighting, or have they abandoned the ring in place of some good profession?

Bill McCormick, who has been an eyewitness to hundreds of gruelling and bruising fistic ecounters during the last decade, has followed the fortunes of some of the gladiators who won fame around this section with keen interest, and has consented to give this column the low-down on the fellows:

Here's what Mac has to say:

"Honeyboy" Finnegan, a meek appearing, blonde Irishman, was one of the fistic marvels of his time. So slender in the waist that he could almost wear a dog collar for a belt, the clever Boston southpaw was built from the hips up like a heavyweight, and he hit like one. After cleaning up everything in sight here, "Honeyboy" went under the wing of Dan Carroll, of Boston, and came within hailing distance of the feather and lightweight titles. Although he usually showed to great advantage elsewhere he could never seem to get off on the right foot at Madison Square Garden. He is now acting as a court attache in Boston and is reputed to be a partner with his erstwhile manager in several highly successful enterprises.

Stovall in Hotel Work.

"Tex Stovall was one of the better local middleweights. While not a ranking fighter, he was one of the best, locally. Is now a handsome, distinguished white-collared gentleman holding down a white-collared job in one of the leading hotels.

"Goldie Ahearn, former A. E. F. featherweight champion and a contender for the world title, defeated just about everything around here, except Honey Boy Finnegan and Al Foreman. He is engaged in a business on Ninth street, coaches the Walter Reed boxers and dabbles in promotion betwixt and between large deals concerning shirts and socks.

"Al Foreman came from Canada, starting his local career as a featherweight at Fort Myer. Ran up an impressive string of victories, and after cleaning up all local opposition, burst forth on a successful national campaign, which began in Philadelphia and ended in London, with Al holding the Lord Lonsdale belt and the British lightweight championship. Foreman boasts a record that has seldom if ever been equaled in prize ring. He is the holder of the world's quick knockout record—11 seconds.

Partner in Gym At Montreal.

While he is a partner in a successful businessmen's gymnasium and health institute in Montreal, with his brother, Harry, Al is still fighting, being at present in the midst of a successful tour of Australia. Brother Harry advises that he will return in April to resume his climb toward the lightweight crown, which has just slipped past him several times.

"About Terry O'Day. After leaving Washington rings, he journeyed to Nicaragua and was successful until the natives tired of the prize ring and returned to the bull ring. When last heard from was in the Philippines.

"Joe Dundee, former world welterweight champion and holder of a knockout over Mickey Walker. Now retired and has a large investment in a big garage, which is yielding a good return.

Groves Success as Coach.

"Harry Kid Groves was once one of the District's most methodical and clever boxers. Patterned much after Gene Tunney in both appearance and ring tactics, Harry did not lose many while he was in the ring seriously. Holds a decision over the heavy punching Spike Webb. Groves is now the most successful boxing coach and second in the District, handling a large stable of highly promising boys."

"Jack Renno, the erstwhile 'Wild Bull of Ninth street,' was nicknamed after Firpo. He looked something like Dempsey. Shorn of the Dempsey scowl, Renno is one of the most popular figures in fistic circles. This was proven when 3,000 tendered him a splendid ovation as he stepped into the ring for the first time in many years to referee a benefit bout recently. Today he is a doorman at a Washington hotel."

Thanks, Mac.

3 FIVES TIED FOR DIXIE LEAD

V. M. I., Two Tarheel Teams Top; Change Due This Week.

By JOSEPH E. NETTLES.

RICHMOND, Va., Jan. 15 (A.P.).—Two North Carolina teams and a single Virginia entry paced Old Dominion basket ball teams today after a week of play that witnessed the downfall of Maryland's speedy Old Liners.

Perched on top the huddle were North Carolina, victor over V. P. I.; North Carolina State, whose lone conference decision also was at the expense of the Virginia Poly quint, and V. M. I. Cadets, whose 30-to-29 victory toppled Maryland from the ranks of the undefeated.

At Least One Leader Due to Fall.

The victorious trio face a stormy week with at least one of the three slated to slip from the leadership. North Carolina and North Carolina State meet at Chapel Hill Wednesday in a game that will throw one of the contenders down into the ranks. Both had easy victories over Virginia Poly, North Carolina by a 58-to-26 margin Friday, and State 46 to 18 the following evening.

Even though State should win Wednesday, the powerful Wolf Pack quintet may find a determined foe in Duke's Blue Devils, who are eager for a conference victory after their 30-to-28 setback by Maryland in the Carolinians' only loop start of the season.

Wednesday and Friday night engagements also will test the mettle of V. M. I.'s clever quintet that administered the first conference jolt by upsetting the Old Liners. Virginia's Cavaliers, undefeated in preliminary play, will make their debut against the Cadets Wednesday, and two nights later V. M. I. will play host to V. P. I.'s often-mistreated Gobblers, who have won only one decision in four conference starts.

Clemson, S. Carolina In Debuts.

The week, which will find every loop team in action, also will mark the debuts of Clemson and South Carolina, who will fight it out at Columbia Friday night. Clemson has found the going rough, but South Carolina, although defeated by Vanderbilt and Kentucky, has flashed a speedy and effective attack.

Maryland, anxious to gain some of the ground lost during a distastrous week, will take on V. P. I. Saturday night at College Park, while the same evening Washington and Lee will play host to Virginia at Lexington.

Maryland's fall from conference leadership was marked by two hair-breadth decisions, one decided by a foul shot that was caged after the final gun had sounded, and the other by a 3-point margin.

Against the Washington and Lee Generals last night the Old Liners were off to an early lead, but were unable to match the stamina and sharpshooting of the Lexington lads. Paced by Fields and Sawyers, who, together, accounted for 31 points, the Generals drew ahead at the start of the second half and successfully fought off frequent and vigorous counter attacks. The final score was 43 to 40.

Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

"AMOS 'N' ANDY," the second of the blue network features to be heard over WMAL, will be broadcast by that station at 7 o'clock tonight, instead of over WRC. The Marx Brothers, who appear every Monday night over WMAL in the Five Star Theater, will be presented at 7:30 o'clock.

A quarter of a million automobiles will be equipped with radio during 1933, according to estimates made by prominent radio and automobile manufacturers. This optimistic figure is based on the growth of sales figures during 1932, and is colored somewhat by the high degree of public interest shown late in the year. The average price of these sets will be in the neighborhood of $45 if sold without power supply, or approximately $10 more for complete a. c. operation, according to O. H. Caldwell, former radio commissioner.

General Motors cars, and those of Dodge and Ford, will have provision for radio so that installation will be simple. At present there is no automotive manufacturer who has decided to equip every car with a radio as it now journeys from the factory, as it does with an extra wheel. This status may change over night; once started such a bulge might assume large proportions. Such a demand would be filled by the radio manufacturer selling his entire output to some auto maker, and might easily account for appreciable profit. The tie-ups between Ford and Majestic, between U. S. Radio and Television and Chevrolet are interesting and important trends, pointing to the loss of identity of the radio partner in the auto-radio combination.

"There is also a feeling that the more expensive cars will be easier to sell, but on this point there is much argument." Mr. Caldwell concludes. "Some feel that the owner of an expensive car has problems on his mind too weighty to be relieved by radio tunes or talks."

Rudyard Kipling's "Mother o' Mine," with the Frank Tours setting, will be one of Lawrence Tibbett's solos on the Voice of Firestone program over WRC at 8:30 o'clock tonight. Tibbett also will sing "Deep River," "Only a Rose," the Cuban dance "Siboney" and "Calf of Gold Song" from Gounod's "Faust." The orchestra directed by William Daly will play Berlioz's "Rakoczy March."

SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY OGDEN L. MILLS will discuss vital questions on "The Federal Budget" in the National Radio Forum over WRC at 10:30 o'clock tonight.

It is believed that hour-long presentations of musical comedy may be the next air fad. There was a secret audition of "Good News," the Schwab & Mandel musical comedy, with Zelda O'Neal and Gus Shy, of the original cast, for the Magic Carpet sponsors last week.

It is said to be the intention of the sponsors to purchase the radio rights of several other musical shows, including "New Moon," "Gingham Girl" and "Queen High," if "Good News" is successfully presented.

Lucien Kirsch, Belgian cellist, will play "Habanera," a composition by Josef Pasternack, when he appears as guest of the Melody Moments over the WJZ network at 9:30 o'clock.

The National Hawaiians, directed by Lucille Pierce Ferguson, will play the following selections during the second of their programs for Trew Motors (WRC, 7:30 p. m.): "Moonlight," "Tickling the Strings," "Drifting and Dreaming" and "Beach at Waikiki."

It was related in the program broadcast from Pittaburgh on the anniversary of Stephen Foster's death that his song "Way Down Upon the Swannee River" was not titled until after it had been written.

"Give me the name of a river in the South having two syllables," Foster asked.

An associate looked in an atlas and came across a small, unknown river, the Swannee, in Florida.

"That's exactly it," Foster is said to have replied with enthusiasm. Accordingly, he named the song after a river he had never seen, in fact never heard of."

The broadcast again brought to mind the amazing number of hits Stephen Foster wrote, which includes, besides "Swannee River," "Come Where My Love Lies Dreaming" (which the announcer said was a favorite of Queen Victoria, Foster's songs, even at an early date, having been played all over the world); "Oh Susannah," "Old Uncle Ned," "Massa's in de Cold, Cold Ground," "My Old Kentucky Home" and "Old Black Joe."

Although Stephen Foster wrote almost 200 songs, many of them successful, as is well known, he died in poverty.

An original sketch, written by and featuring Jim McGrath, the prize-fight announcer, will be presented over station WMAL at 8:45 o'clock tonight. It is a dramatization of a well-known incident of the prize-fight ring.

As a result of no action being taken at the recent joint meeting of the National and American Baseball Leagues officials in New York, it is up to the individual clubs to say whether or not their games are to be broadcast next summer.

When the question came up at the meeting with regard to the advisability of putting baseball games on the air, those taking part in the discussions were reported to have been about evenly divided despite the fact that five out of the eight National League Clubs had previously put themselves on record as being opposed to broadcasting.

At the New York meeting both Boston presidents, Emil Fuchs, of the Braves, and Robert Quinn, of the Red Sox, favored broadcasting, as did William Veeck, president of the Chicago Cubs. Opposition was voiced by Samuel Breadon, of the St. Louis Cardinals, and Alva Bradley, of Cleveland.

However, when it comes to a formal vote the magnates seemed to think a home rule policy would be best, and for the time being, at least, put the matter of broadcasting the games up to the clubs themselves.

"FIFTY Years of Progress in Civil Service" is the title of an address to be delivered by Thomas E. Campbell, president of the Civil Service Commission (WOL, 6:30 o'clock) tonight.

Hosiery Producer For Shorter Week

Senators Told Reduction in Hours Would Boost Wages and Mart.

(Associated Press.)

Full-fashioned hosiery manufacturers Saturday were recorded in favor of the Black compulsory five-day week bill.

Joseph Haines, of Philadelphia, secretary of the Full-Fashioned Hosiery Manufacturers Association, told a Senate judiciary subcommittee considering the measure that it would "inflate wages and make for a better hosiery market and a more profitable industry."

"We must eliminate overproduction," he said, "and encourage manufacturers to get a fair return on their investment and fair reward for employes."

THE PARADINE CASE

By ROBERT HICHENS

SYNOPSIS.

Sir Malcolm Keane, one of England's most celebrated advocates, has been briefed by Sir Simon Flaquer, solicitor, to defend his client, Mrs. Paradine, against a charge of murdering her husband, Col. Paradine.

While Mrs. Paradine is in Halloway jail awaiting trial, Lord Horfield is appointed Judge of the case.

Sir Malcolm and his pretty wife, Gay, who bears a subtle resemblance to Mrs. Paradine, have been happily married for ten years, but the husband's obsession with the Paradine case is beginning to cast a dark shadow over their happiness. Sir Malcolm finds himself fascinated by the mysterious blonde, whom he passionately desires to save. Subconsciously he is not wholly convinced of her innocence, but he declares emphatically to Sir Simon that he believes her innocent. Sir Simon is skeptical about the defense Sir Malcolm has prepared, which is to suggest that the colonel's servant, William Marsh, who had been Paradine's batman in the war, might have had a hand in the murder. Sir Malcolm is afraid of Lord Horfield, who seems to have a streak of cruelty that manifests itself toward women who come up for trial before him.

Col. Paradine had been blinded in the war and had never seen his beautiful wife, who had been a servant before her marriage. She is a Dane, who had been rescued from a life of degradation by a philanthropic American. After a short period in the United States, she had settled in London to earn her living, and had married the rich Col. Paradine after the war.

Sir Malcolm goes alone to the north of England to look over the Paradine home at Hindley. On his return he invites the Horfields to dinner and the theater, against Gay's wishes. The dinner passes off in a friendly enough spirit. Leaving for the theater Keane takes Lady Horfield in his car and Gay accompanies Lord Horfield, who makes love to her, much to her disgust.

When the Paradine trial opens, Gay goes to it with Judith Flaquer, unknown to Malcolm. Mrs. Paradine is put on the stand and testifies that William Marsh had pursued her with unwelcome attentions and that she had as a last resort complained to the colonel the afternoon before he died. Marsh is called to the stand and denies the lie to Mrs. Paradine, testifying that it was she who pursued him.

HE stopped speaking, put his cigar to his lips, drew on it and let out a cloud of perfumed smoke, following its upward movement with suddenly smiling eyes.

"You and Malcolm Keane have become so intimate this winter that perhaps he's told you his secret. Has he?"

Lady Horfield who, turned sideways in her chair, was gazing at her husband with her head drooping forward, stammered:

"Secret? I don't know—we haven't ever——"

"Then I'll tell it to you. Keane is madly in love with Mrs. Paradine. And today in court, when I recalled Marsh and had him put in the box, Keane got his death blow."

"O, Horfield!"

The judge looked at her and smiled.

"You silly old woman!" he resumed. "You muddle along and don't know where you're going, or what are the true aims of those you come in contact with. You're just one of the innumerable blunderers who clutter up the world. And you actually thought you could play out a hand of trumps against me without making a mistake. And extra ace up your sleeve and God almighty put it there!"

With sudden brutality he added:

"Go to bed! I've had enough of you and your folly!"

She went awkwardly towards the door, her big body shaking.

"I am a fool, I know, and a muddler. But I can see something, O, Horfield, you can't find happiness, real happiness, in the misery and despair of others. No one can. Try, do try—the other way before it's too late."

"Go to bed!"

She opened the door and got out of the room somehow.

The judge threw his cigar into the burning logs, put his thin arms on the high mantelpiece and leaned his head on them.

"Women! The way they talk!" he muttered.

He stayed thus with his face hidden for two or three minutes. Then he lifted his head from his arm, turned from the fire and, walking slowly, like an invalid, went back to the dinner table. The brandy Lady Horfield had asked for was by her dessert place, untouched. The judge looked at it, took it up and drank it.

"Her brandy!" he muttered.

He sat down at the table and reached out for his own.

"The verdict—tomorrow!" he whispered to himself, as he lifted the glass.

* * * * * * * *

On the following morning, which was bitterly cold and wintry, with a drifting of sleet in the early hours, Gay had a struggle with herself. She had arranged with Judith Flaquer to "stick it out," and to be present in court on the last day of the trial. (Judith was sure that the case would finish that day.) But when the morning dawned, and her maid came in to bring her tea and to light her fire she was seized by a panic of nervous depression and a longing to go away, right away, to get out of London, to go down and bury herself once more in the Surrey cottage.

Malcolm was wrapped up in his own desperation, and if he thought about her at all he thought of her as some one from whom, if possible he must hide the passions which rent him. At dinner on the previous evening he had made no allusion to the events of the day. He had said very little, had scarcely eaten anything, and immediately after dinner had abruptly bidden her good-night and gone away to his library. There he had shut himself up, and she had neither seen him nor heard his step again that night. He had looked very worn and ill, and there had been an expression in his eyes now and then which had frightened her. It made her realize with painful intensity the utter solitude of the human spirit in moments of crisis. One flesh? Yes; that might perhaps be called possible. The prayer book asserted it, and human beings accepted the assertion. But one spirit? No! Never!

"Malcolm and I have never been one," Gay said to herself. "And we never can be one."

And yet she loved him, and, strangely, never more than now. She had loved him in the past, admiring him, rejoicing in his confident powers, his success in the usage of them, his masculine strength of body and intellect, his pride in her and their common life. Now she loved him with a passion of pity, with tears of the heart for him and for herself. His suffering seemed to wind itself round her like a shirt of Nessus. She was compressed in his silent despair.

She had promised to meet Judith at the flat in Hallam street, and she walked there at the appointed time, shivering under her furs in the fierce March wind, clouded in an atmosphere of nightmare.

Judith opened the door to her. She, too, was wrapped in furs.

"Up to time!" she said as she kissed Gay. "We must be off at once. Your husband will begin his speech directly the court sits. Papa is sure the verdict will be given some time today. Unless, of course, the jury should disagree."

She made as if to come out of the flat at once," but Gay stopped her.

"Let me come in for one minute, Judy!"

"Of course! But what is it?"

Judith drew back. Gay walked in and shut the door, and at once said:

"I don't know whether I'll come, Judy."

"Oh, you must!"

"I thought—I had some idea of going back to Surrey today—instead."

Judith put her hands on Gay's shoulders and looked into her eyes.

"Don't go! I understand. I'm sure I understand. But be brave and stay. I believe it is best."

"But Judy, will she be condemned?"

"I don't know."

"What does your father think?"

"He thinks the jury may probably disagree."

"Does your father think she is guilty?"

"I'm afraid he does," Judith said. She moved her shoulders.

"After yesterday! That man's confession!"

"But is it proved?"

"Circumstantial evidence! Still there's a chance for her, what people call a sporting chance. Your husband has worked miracles on juries before now."

"Oh, Judy, didn't Malcolm do great harm in his examination of her? I don't understand these things. I've never been in court before. But I couldn't help thinking that Sir Joseph Farrell read something that was in Malcolm's mind, and acted on it, and that——"

She stopped again. Judith said nothing. For once she seemed almost painfully embarrassed.

"If it is so, and if she is condemned—perhaps in consequence of that—what will Malcolm do?" Gay said.

Judith didn't answer that question. Instead she said with deep seriousness:

"You mustn't run away. Don't you see that? But after what you've just said you must see it. I think to do that would be almost like cowardice."

Gay flushed and looked down.

"Don't you agree with me?" Judith asked gently.

They stood in silence for a moment. Then Gay said:

"I will come."

Gay turned and walked out of the flat.

Down below they picked up a cab and Judith told the chauffeur to drive to the Old Bailey.

"Going to the trial, lady?" said the man.

Judith nodded.

"I'd give a good deal myself to hear the end of it," he said. "I think she done it. But perhaps Sir Malcolm Keane'll get her off."

"The man in the street has a tremendous belief in Sir Malcolm's powers," said Judith as the cab moved on. "Perhaps he'll justify them once more today. But there's Lord Horfield to reckon with."

"Judy." Gay said, in a faltering voice, "I shouldn't be surprised if Malcolm broke down in court."

"O, no!"

"He looked horribly ill at dinner last night."

"And this morning?"

"I haven't seen him. He didn't come to my room. He always comes, but this morning he didn't."

"Sir Malcolm won't break down. Once he gets on his feet all his powers will come to him. I know these practiced lawyers. They are like big actors, who may arrive at the theater feeling at death's door, but directly they walk on the stage and smell the audience—a nasty expression that, but current behind the scenes—are masters of the joy they were made for. You'll see I'm right."

"I hope so," said Gay faintly.

With their faces veiled, Gay and Judith got out of their cab and managed with great difficulty, helped by a gigantic policeman, to get into the building, which today at that moment seemed the center of a horrible world.

As Gay squeezed into the packed gallery an instant later she heard a familiar voice speaking with the clearness and ease of a practiced orator. It was Malcolm's, and it gave her the impression of a man completely self-possessed, determined and lucid.

Gay did not know how long her husband had been speaking, but he was now dealing with Sir Joseph Farrell's speech for the crown, delivered on the previous day, and was evidently dealing with it viciously. There was concentrated contempt in his voice as he said:

"Gentlemen and ladies of the jury, in all my long and varied experience at the bar I have never listened to such a biased and cruel attack on a prisoner, a woman prisoner, mind you, delivered with such venom and supported by so little evidence as the speech we were obliged to listen to in this court yesterday.

"Nothing," he said, "has been too trivial, nothing too harmless, to escape the learned counsel's envenomed attention. The fact of the matter is, as I hope presently to convince you, that it has fallen to his lot to endeavor to make bricks without having any straw in his possession. He has had to try to build up an indictment of this unfortunate lady without having anything really tangible to go upon. He has been hard put to it and there were moments in his discourse when I was really disposed to pity him. But"—here he stopped for an instant, looked hard at the jury box, then added—"my inclination toward pity was soon transformed into a righteous indignation at the really outrageous handling of my client by the learned counsel, who seemed entirely to overlook the fact that in our English courts what we require in order to convict the accused person is not insinuation, however crafty; not implication, however sinister, but proofs. Proofs!" He repeated the word, raising his powerful voice till it rang through the crowded court. "The learned counsel for the crown has been sent here to supply proofs that my client is a cold-blooded, determined murderess. Let us see if he has supplied them. Nothing else will do. Suggestion is of no use, suspicion of no avail, possibilities, even probabilities are ruled out. In England, ladies and gentlemen of the jury, to bring a human creature full of life, of powers, of yearnings, of that love for the glory of existence which we all alike share, to the scaffold you must deliver proof that he or she is guilty of taking deliberately the life of another. Now let us see whether the learned counsel for the crown has delivered any proof, or shadow of proof, that my client is so guilty. Let us put passion and prepossession aside and coldly examine into what he has thought fit to offer you for the conviction of my client and the sending of her, still young, still full of life and great possibilities, into the eternal silence from which there is no return."

Dr. Byron Cummings Finds Seven Pueblos

Tucson, Ariz., Jan. 15 (A.P.).—Dr. Byron Cummings, head of the archeology department of the University of Arizona, has announced the discovery of seven large pueblos he said were occupied several centuries ago by Sobapuri Indians.

Dr. Cummings said he and a group of advanced students in his department uncovered the pueblos in the country back of the Santa Catalina Mountains.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

Two stockinette models for your morning stroll. One is dark blue, worked with stitched strips. The other, which has the same skirt effect, is of pale green, with a turned down collar and slightly bloused effect. Courtesy of Molyneux.

WHILE all Paris is once more rustling and bustling and whispering vague hints anent this and that, these and those, which are sure to be seen in the important collections of the Haute Couture that will open the end of this month, Mere Madame, she who will finally make or break the ideas about which is the whispering, is still wondering just where her waistline is!

Now, a waistline is very bewildering. That is a mild adjective to describe the feelings that arise in the feminine wai—I mean mind—when it comes to waistlines and their unstability. Not only the poor buyer who is supposed to be infallible in her choice of what Miladi American is going to like, but Miladi herself finds this shifting of her belt no end disconcerting.

Whether to decide upon a line of demarcation herself or to adopt the Middle Ages cincture, which is frankly much lower than that of the directoire days, or to keep one's eyes as it were on each, the while wearing her belt as she prefers, is a matter that might well turn the most settled head. Which it does.

The mid-season collections didn't help any, either—what with this and that, couturier, each and every one with a belt in a different place! Now it is fondly hoped that a few of them will get together and make something more definite out of miladi's waistline. But I fear they won't, because they never do.

It behooves the chic woman to take into consideration all lines and outlines before making any decision. Then to make her decision with her particular figure in mind, and the personal becomingness of this or that belt. And, above all, to be fairly consistent in her choice, because nothing is worse than a wardrobe full of every whim of the mode—and elegant in nothing. Choose the "Moyenageux" in your cincture if you wish—but see that the silhouette is followed in your daytime dresses and coats and jackets, at least. If you wish variety in the form of an empress line, try this out in an afternoon frock or evening gown—where only one or two garments will have to be considered with it.

* * * *

Molyneux stands for everything that is chic and the most wearable things you can imagine. How would you like these two stockinette models for your morning stroll? One is dark blue, worked with stitched strips, one of which gives the waistband effect. The round pockets are framed with stitching and metal button, and the skirt is crossed over and fastened in front—in a typical Molyneux manner.

The other, which has the same skirt effect, is of pale green, with a turned-down collar and slightly bloused effect. Both are the utmost in chic, essentially practical and somewhat youthful.

* * * *

A little French is absolutely necessary to chic. Do you know how to say "lingerie?" How to say "couturiere?" And how often have you stumbled over "jabot," "gilet," "godet," not to mention such jawbreakers as "diamante," "directoir," "mousquetaire?" Yet those words are constantly cropping up in groups of smart women when the talk turns, as it always does, to clothes and the style.

That's why I have prepared a leaflet for you—containing all of the words of this sort you could possibly need, and phrases and sentences, too. It isn't a leaflet on what you would need in conversational French if you were going to Paris—you can get those anywhere—without pronunciation help. But it is something that you can't get elsewhere; that will be helpful and has most practical pronunciation helps. Send your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare department of The Washington Post for it if you want it.

Au revoir.

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

HERE is a pathetic letter from a woman of 45 who, after 20 years, has to return to the business world to earn her own livelihood. I am publishing parts of it, feeling that there may be many women in her position:

"For years, my husband has worked only intermittently. He worried. Now he is so ill that he can no longer work. A friend helped me secure a clerical position in an office. But it was like learning to walk again. Then I tried to sell insurance. But times are too hard. Finally a rich family employed me as general maid and cook. At first, there was a constant lump in my throat. It hurt. I who had always had the comforts of life, and even more, turned 'chief cook and bottle washer.' Now that I am accustomed to the idea I have my appearance to worry about. I overheard a guest say something about 'a younger woman.' Why do people think that gray hair and sagging chin and wrinkles mean that you are too old to be efficient. I have very little money to invest in beauty, but must if I am to go on and I must go on. I have often read 'signs of age' in beauty columns. Now I know what they really mean. Please help me.

"A READER IN DESPAIR."

* * * *

I hope that our brave reader will not miss this column for it carries with it an encouraging message. It is not so much the "signs of age" mentioned in the letter that employers associate with inefficiency or lack of interest; it is a worried look, dull eyes, gray skin, slow, forlorn step that depress. Even in the face of such misfortune, an unsympathetic employer will expect you to smile. And you are brave enough to try.

Treatment Every Day.

Every day devote a few minutes to beauty care, even if you have to get up fifteen minutes earlier to do it. Purchase a good nourishing cream and a good astringent. That is all I will ask you to invest in, since you can not afford more. Cleanse your skin with soap and water. Then apply the nourishing cream over face and neck and particularly on any lines. Leave on for ten minutes. Then directly over the cream pat with iced astringent. When you have more time give yourself a tie-up. Even if this treatment does not immediately iron out the wrinkles or lift the muscles, it will refresh you and lift your spirits and make you smile.

The gray hair can either be dyed or temporarily covered over, I am glad you included a self-addressed, stamped envelope. Bulletins on "signs of age" and "gray hair" are going to you. The first contains hints on skin care, the second on the hair. I hope these hints will help you. Cheer up and I hope fortune will soon smile on you again.

What Today Means

By MARY BLAKE

"CAPRICORN."

IF January 16 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:30 a. m. to 11:50 a. m., from 5 p. m. to 6:20 p. m. and from 9 p. m. to 10 p. m. The danger periods are from 8:15 a. m. to 9:15 a. m. and from 3:30 p. m. to 4:45 p. m.

Influences are such as would seem to create difficulties in personal relationships on this date. You will have to "strain a point" to show patience and tact in handling your dealings with others. Conditions would seem most ideal for travel, especially by automobile. Dame Fortune may be unkind in business matters.

Born on this January 16, the child will be inclined to be headstrong; he will be difficult to manage and will not listen to reason. He will take his hard knocks, learn from them, and carry on through a vigorous childhood. The boy or girl born on this day will be possessed of the many qualities that make for leadership. Look for the child to do well at school.

If January 16 is the date of your birth, you are too often inclined to "give up the ship" at the first sign of difficulties in your path. You are not a quitter exactly, for you will fight a thing through if there is a worthy principle involved. Generally you class a given situation as if no moment and drop it without carrying through to a solution. Victory for the sake of victory does not appeal to you. You are not a fighter. You feel that existence should be peacefully pleasant, rather than a struggle.

If your birthday is on January 16, you often appear to be what you are really not; you like to put on a "big front." You are more than a little vain, and, like most people with this quality, you are easily flattered. Take care lest flattery prove your undoing. You are a good parent in the sense that you do much for your children. You dress them well, and give them all the advantages that you can afford, and even some that you can not. You are probably motivated, however, not by a desire to benefit the child, but rather to bring glory and praise upon yourself as the wonderful parent of that wonderful child. Your motives in this connection, as well as in other matters, bear careful analysis.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

SIMPLE BABY FEEDING.

THE modern trend in artificial feeding is away from the use of fresh liquid milk. Milk powders, evaporated milk, condensed milk and baby foods are increasing in use. A considerable part of this is the result of the general use of fruit juice, including tomato juice, fish liver oils and viosterol, vegetable soups, pureed vegetables, cereals and crackers.

The old arguments against canned milks and baby foods no longer carry much weight now that diets are balanced by the use of supplementary foods.

In many British communities the health authorities distribute free milk for baby feeding, and choice is given between liquid milk and the canned article and milk powder. About half the number do not elect to take fresh liquid milk. The British liquid supply is not up to American standards. They are adopting American milk production methods, but they are about ten to fifteen years behind our schedule.

The reasons for the preference shown by many in this country for canned milk, milk powders and baby foods are several. One is the matter of cost. The machinery for marketing liquid milk is burdensome and unduly expensive. One institution, Dr. Reiss reported, was able to cut its milk bill one-third by using evaporated milk instead of the liquid article. In this institution two formulas were used. No. 1 consisted of 14 ounces of evaporated milk, 16 ounces of water, 2 ounces of corn sugar and 5 teaspoons of lemon juice. No. 2 consisted of 14 ounces of evaporated milk, 20 ounces of water, 1½ ounces of corn sugar and 5 teaspoons of lemon juice.

Since No. 1 was the more concentrated food, it was used for undernourished children and those that vomited or seemed to have indigestion. Some babies do not thrive on liquid milk because it contains too much water, is not concentrated enough, is too bulky. Some of these babies do best when fed on a paste made with milk powder, or powder and cereal; some thrive when fed on milk powder or evaporated milk, not milk diluted. It is in the feeding of babies of this class that No. 1 is used in this institution.

All other babies fed on cow's milk in this hospital were given a preparation made according to formula No. 2. No other food was given to the young babies in this hospital except cod liver oil. The babies thrived, they had no scurvy and they were free from rickets.

KIN OF RAYNAUD'S.

H. H. writes: My hands, particularly across the knuckles and little fingers, become red and inflamed quite often during the colder weather. Normally, my hands are very cold, and when this inflammation occurs it is very painful. It is not due to wearing tight gloves, as it is apt to happen any time during the day.

My chest and neck will also break out in an angry red rash and this occurs when I am under a tension of some sort. Can this be due to poor circulation, and why should only those areas be affected?

REPLY.

You have a vasomotor disturbance. It is probably a poor relation of Raynaud's disease.

Some of the newer discoveries in medicine relate to tests for vosomotor diseases and to methods of treating them. Have you tried contrast baths and hot and cold baths in alteration? You might try this on your hands and also as body showers.

Federal Railroad Ownership Is Seen

Senator Lewis Feels Lines Won't Repay Loans to R. F. C.

(Associated Press.)

Senator Lewis (Democrat), Illinois, predicted in the Senate Saturday that Reconstruction Finance Corporation loans to the railroads would not be repaid and Government ownership would result sooner or later.

Senator Long (Democrat), Louisiana, asked Lewis if he thought the railroads could "extricate" themselves from the competition of water, air and road transportation competition unless something drastic were done.

"Loans advanced to the railroads by the Reconstruction Corporation will not be paid," Lewis replied, "and the Government sooner or later will be compelled first to supervise and then to take over ownership of the railroads."

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

THE flag of the United States is older by 24 years than the flag of Great Britain. The United States' Stars and Stripes was adopted in 1777 and has remained unchanged since, with the exception of adding stars to the field of blue to represent States as they were added to the Union. The flag of 1777 had thirteen stars, of course.

The present flag of Great Britain, the Union Jack, came into being in 1801, after the union with Ireland. The older flag was changed with the red cross of St. Patrick superimposed on the former flag.

The strange play at the first hole of the Piedmont Park municipal golf course at Atlanta, Ga., was in a foursome including L. G. Taylor, H. E. Mayfield, J. Ward and G. N. Holmes. The hole-in-one-two-three-four was played as follows:

Mr. Taylor teed off, sinking the 183-yard hole in one. Mr. Mayfield was next. He drove onto the green, but his ball stopped within two feet of the hole. He scored a two. Mr. Ward was just on the green. He took two putts, holing out in three. Mr. Holmes was off the green. He chipped on and sank his ball in two putts.

The fur of the weasel turns white in the winter, giving the animal a natural protection against the snow. The white fur is known in the United States and Canada as ermine.

1. By special and exclusive arrangement with the Century of Progress, The Washington Post seeks fifty-one of the most charming girls in the world to become "Queen" and her "Court of Honor" to dedicate the Century of Progress International Exposition at Chicago. Girls everywhere are invited to submit their photographs.

2. This offer is open to every girl—unmarried or widow—residing anywhere in the world, excepting professional beauties such as stage girls or artists' models and excepting employes of The Washington Post and members of their families. It is free. There is no charge of any kind.

3. From all the photographs submitted in this competition, the fifty-one most charming girls will be chosen to serve as the "Queen" and her "Court of Honor." These fifty-one girls will be invited to Chicago for the final judging. All their expenses will be paid. From these fifty-one girls three Grand Prize winners will be chosen and the following cash sums will be paid to them:

1st Grand Prize	$5,000.00
2nd Grand Prize	3,000.00
3rd Grand Prize	2,000.00

The first Grand Prize winner shall be crowned "Queen." The second and third Grand Prize winners shall be, respectively, the first and second Ladies-in-Waiting. The forty-eight other girls chosen shall, with the two Ladies-in-Waiting, complete the fifty members of the "Queen's Court of Honor." The "Queen and her Court" will formally dedicate the Century of Progress International Exposition at Chicago under suitable ceremonies.

4. The "Queen" and members of her "Court of Honor" shall be guests of The Washington Post and the Chicago Tribune at the Exposition. The Washington Post and the Chicago Tribune will furnish proper chaperonage for such girls while in Chicago and will pay all such expenses as transportation, hotel accommodations, entertainment, &c., and will provide suitable gowns for the "Queen and her Court." Each entrant agrees to abide by the regulations of The Washington Post respecting chaperonage, conduct, services, and any and all other matters. Should any entrant be unable for any reason whatsoever to abide by such regulations, The Washington Post reserves the right to disqualify the entrant and name any other entrant selected by the judges to fill her place. The girls chosen as "Queen" and her "Court of Honor" agree that they will not accept any theatrical, movie or talkie engagement for a period of one year from June 1, 1933, without the written consent of parent or guardian and The Tribune Company.

5. Beginning Sunday, January 29, and continuing for ten consecutive Sundays, ten of the photographs submitted will be published each Sunday in the Rotogravure Section of The Washington Post and to each girl whose photograph is so published The Washington Post will pay the sum of $5.00 (total $500.00). These prizes are in addition to the Grand Prizes. Every girl whose photograph is submitted whether published in The Sunday Post or not will be eligible for the Grand Prizes.

6. Photographs may be submitted by the entrant or by any relative or friend. However, the prizes shall be payable only to the persons whose photographs are submitted. Pictures must have been taken within the past twelve months and be at least 6 inches by 8 inches in size.

7. On the back of each photograph submitted must be pasted the coupon below or the same information written on another sheet of paper. Entrants agree that The Washington Post will not be responsible for photographs lost or damaged.

8. This offer is now open. Photographs should be submitted at once. No entries will be accepted after midnight April 15, 1933.

9. The judges will be a committee composed of nationally known people and their staff. Judgment will be based upon charm, loveliness and personality. Entrants agree to accept the decision of the judges in all matters as final.
